FAULKNER DISPLACED IN PRIMARY ROW

Today

For Senator Glass.
Marshal Chang Flies.
Hoi Polloi News.
Monkeys by the Fire.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

SENATOR CARTER GLASS, patriotic member of Congress, to whom the nation is indebted for his work on the Federal Reserve law, that has rendered untold services to the United States, concentrates on financial problems.

This writer would suggest to Senator Glass, deferentially, that a provision in his bill that might make it impossible for big commercial banks to refinance important bond issues, as they become due, seems dangerous.

If maturing bond issues are not refinanced, stockholders' interest may easily be wiped out, without necessity or good reason.

What is more dangerous, bonds that are normally sound would be jeopardized, and the welfare of savings banks and life insurance companies jeopardized with them.

IF MEMBER banks of the Federal Reserve are forbidden to underwrite maturing bond issues, forbidden to buy more than ten per cent of any issue, then the whole work of refinancing would fall upon private bankers, of whom there are few of real strength, such as Morgan and Company, Kuhn, Loeb, Dillon Read and Company.

They would do their best undoubtedly to take care of situations arising, but they could not by any possibility do all the refinancing that would be necessary to protect sound interests.

AND, BY REMOVING power to do refinancing from Federal Reserve banks, the government would take refinancing out of the hands of the only organization which the government can regulate and control.

It is submitted to Senator Carter Glass that, with proper regulations as to issues underwritten or purchased, the banks should be allowed to attend to this important function through their affiliates, the latter providing special capitalization for the purpose.

A bill that makes this impossible might be more disastrous for the country than all the stock gambling, short selling, etc.

A TRAVELER from strange parts in China and Mongolia reports that only three American names are known there, Rockefeller, Ford and Edison. In China the Ford name now appears in the air, written on a three-motored plane that the Chinese marshal, Chang Hsia-Liang, bought for $100,000. With two American pilots and two mechanics, it has just made a flight from Hongkong to Peiping, 1,275 miles, with one stop.

Marshal Chang, former governor of Manchuria, put out by the Japanese, has luxurious furniture and a good kitchen in his airplane. He wants it, the American mechanics say, for "quick getaways."

IF YOU HAVE felt the depression you will be happy to learn that "top prices" for the Max Schmeling-Jack Sharkey prize fight have been reduced to $23 a seat. The price, originally $27.50, is reduced as a concession to "present conditions."

Hoi-polloi will be delighted to hear that they can get in for as little as $3.45. A special stadium seventeen hundred feet long and eleven hundred feet wide is being built in honor of the event.

WHEN HUNTERS leave a fire burning monkeys come down from trees, sit around the fire, looking, wondering. No monkey has ever been known to add a stick to keep the fire going. When it goes out, they climb back into the trees, and we wonder at them.

AS MONKEYS sit around a little fire on earth, so we, on our whirling globe, look at that big fire, the sun, our source of heat, light and life, and know no more about it than the monkeys know about their fire.

However, we shall know all about it some day, and already science has invented a machine called a "brass brain" to keep track of variations in the sun's radiation, supposed to cause our wet and dry, cold and warm seasons. Scientists think the "brass brain" will help them to predict the weather several years ahead.

WE MUST always remember that we came out of the late stone age only twelve thousand years ago and have, probably, a hundred million more years on earth ahead of us. Plenty of time to get acquainted with our central solar fire, and learn to control ourselves and the animal characteristics, ignorance, hatred and ferocity, inherited before the stone age began.

THE LATEST delicacy in London is penguins' eggs, sent from South Africa, selling for $2 a dozen, and twice as big as hens' eggs.

Hens' eggs are cheaper and fresher, but taste should not be criticized. The Chinese like eggs many years old, the British like dry cigars.

Bismarck was fond of plovers' eggs, sent to him from England. The penguins' eggs are like them, in having a transparent "white" nearly as hard as rubber when boiled.

WHEN THE British governor-general entered the ballroom in Dublin, all the Irish ministers left. The French minister to the Free State gave the party.

The new Irish government, apparently, is determined to have a fight with England. Such a fight has not been enjoyed for some time, and if the Free State government wants it, it will have it.

DARROW SET FOR PLAY ON EMOTIONS

Plans to Speak for Hours To Save Four Americans From Hawaiian Prison

By JAMES ADAM

(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

HONOLULU, T. H., April 26. — The Fortescue-Massie "honor slaying" trial, which created a social and political earthquake in Hawaii, has ended so far as the taking of testimony is concerned.

Arguments by counsel to the mixed-blood jury will begin today and probably last all day.

Judge Charles S. Davis revealed that he may deliver his instructions to the jury before hearing the arguments, and if this procedure is followed, the jury will get the case immediately after the addresses. Otherwise, he indicated, he will deliver the charge tomorrow morning.

DARROW'S APPEAL

Clarence Darrow, chief attorney for the defense, is planning a great emotional appeal in his closing address. He prophesied today:

"There isn't a chance in the world of concluding the arguments today. I intend to speak from two and one-half hours to three or four hours, maybe more.

"A lawyer can go on arguing this case for hours and hours. I don't know another case like it."

Yesterday was a hectic day in the colorful second degree murder trial, with much bickering between opposing counsel. Darrow plainly showed the tense strain under which he has been laboring.

Dr. Joseph Catton, an alienist of Stanford University, California, was the principal witness yesterday, and after Dr. Faus, city and county physician of Honolulu, was heard briefly, the prosecution rested.

DISPUTES INSANITY PLEA

Dr. Catton testified that his study of the trial record convinced him that Lieut. Thomas H. Massie was sane at the time of the killing of Joseph Kahahawai, on January 8 last. Lieut. Massie has been on trial since April 4 with his mother-in-law, Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, and two Navy

GAS FUMES KILL 'HILL' GROCER

Man and Wife Overcome In Roberts Street Home Rushed to Hospital, Saved

From the dining room of his gas-filled home, Harry Berkman, 35, was carried. He was pronounced dead at the scene by a physician.

Samuel Gulande, 62, and his wife, Rachael Gulande, 64, were carried from their second-floor home to the street while a crowd collected outside the house.

Police reported the entire house was filled with gas fumes.

In the cellar, they said, the pilot light of a water heater was extinguished.

Mr. and Mrs. Gulande were rushed to Passavant Hospital by police.

STEEL DIVIDEND UP TODAY

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—Wall street went to work today wondering whether the United States Steel Corporation would continue to play Santa Claus to its common stockholders by declaring another dividend out of surplus at the directors' meeting this afternoon.

There was a general belief the answer would be "no" and that for the third time in its history the big industrial enterprise would omit a quarterly payment on its junior shares.

This feeling was based on expectations that first-quarter operations had resulted in a substantial deficit; for three months ago, when the dividend was cut to 50 cents from $1, the board said continuance of disbursements "must depend upon an improvement in the corporation's volume of business and earnings." Such a gain, according to available evidence, did not take place. In fact, the steel business continued down grade during the first three months of 1932.

Recent reports have said that another 10 per cent wage cut was likely to be made by the steel industry. United States Steel took the lead in the last reduction, which became effective on October 1, 1931, but whether the corporation had immediate plans for a second cut has not been disclosed.

LA GUARDIA HITS STOCK 'RIGGING'

Financial Writers Paid for Propaganda, He Says; Shows Probers Checks

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The "good old ballyhoo," by which the general public was lured into buying highly inflated stocks only to lose huge sums when the promoters unloaded their holdings, was vividly explained at the Senate's short-selling investigation today by Representative Fiorella LaGuardia (Rep.), of New York.

Armed with a trunkload of documents, the New Yorker showed how publicity campaigns were staged to build up false values for Maxwell Motohs in 1923, Savage Arms in 1924 and Pure Oil stocks in 1925. He even produced the promoter's checks cashed by financial writers who were paid for writing optimistic stories about these stocks. At least one of the writers, who took such a check, has been criticizing the stock market inquiry.

CHECKS SCATTERED

LaGuardia got his records from A. Newton Plummer," who served as publicity man for the brokerage firm of Jackson Brothers & Bosel and for the Chase Securities Corporation in motoring stocks. Plummer scattered checks with a lavish hand among financial writers, who allegedly published friendly stories about the stocks he sought to promote.

He also traced a promotion campaign in Indian Motors stock in 1930. He showed how favorable publicity lured the public into buying the stock. When prices rose from 5 to 17, the promoters unloaded on the public. The stock then fell back to 5, but the promoters had reaped a huge profit.

After hearing LaGuardia, who appeared as a "mystery witness," the committee adjourned its hearings pending call from its chairman. It was apparent that the committee desired time to send investigators to New York to search the records of brokers and traders before resuming the public hearings.

SHOWS CLIPPINGS

LaGuardia showed by newspaper clippings and checks how the brokerage firm of Jackson Brothers and Bosel literally bought publicity in behalf of Savage Arms stock in 1924. He showed that Plummer was given the account to distribute among financial writers.

Plummer handled the "ballyhoo" for the stock and spent $286,000 in that connection LaGuardia said. He told the committee, though, that he would only go into $170,000 of this expenditure for favorable publicity and advertising.

LaGuardia showed by Plummer's records that the firm turned over to him 500 shares of the stock. He admitted that since this happened, Plummer was

BALLOTING MARKED BY VIOLENCE AT POLLS

Polic Inspector Seeks to End Little's Control; Election Judge Arrested

BULLETIN.

Nine state troopers were on their way to Pittsburgh from the Greensburg barracks late today at the request of John K. Morrow, chairman of the Registration Board, after a representative of the board had been ejected from the polling place of the Second District, Twenty-first Ward. He went to register a woman voter who had registered in another district by mistake, Morrow said.

Police Inspector Charles Faulkner, of the North Side, was relieved of charge in the Woods Run district during today's primaries as the outcome of a bitter factional fight for control of the Twenty-first Ward.

Fist fights and minor disturbances were reported from several districts.

A verbal order that Faulkner was supplanted until the polls close by Lieut. John J. Joyce in the Woods Run territory came after a fight at the polling place of the Eighth District, Twenty-first Ward.

OPPONENTS BEATEN

Two workers for Dr. F. H. Frederick, who, with Faulkner, is seeking to wrest control of the ward from Councilman Harry A. Little and the city organization, were alleged to have been badly beaten by City Detective Joseph Foster and Patrolman William Walsh.

The two, Daniel (Harp) McLaughlin and David Zoller, were arrested on suspicious person charges and lodged in Central Station. Faulkner obtained their release on $100 bail each pending a hearing tomorrow before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

On complaint of Blair Shuler, deputy constable of the Nineteenth Ward, who appeared in court with a black eye, suffered in a fight in the Eighth District of that ward, the court issued bench warrants for Joe Petrollo, judge of election, his three brothers, Frank, Angelo and Leo Petrollo, and a brother-in-law, Frank Cafero. The election board also was brought in.

After a hearing, Judge S. H. Gardner held Joe Petrollo for court on a charge of aggravated assault and battery. His three brothers and brother-in-law were discharged and the board sent back with a warning to conduct an honest election.

BOARD REPRIMANDED

The election board of the Sixth District, Third Ward, battleground of the congressional fight between P. J. Sullivan and Councilman M. J. Muldowney, backed by State Senator James J. Coyne, was haled into court on petition of Attorney B. Robert Averbach, Sheriff's solicitor, and reputed to be aligned with the Coyne faction.

Judge S. H. Gardner reprimanded the board for signing the

Mellon's Residence Again Redecorated

LONDON, April 26.—(INS.)—Although the official residence of Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon was redecorated shortly before he arrived here from the United States, decorators today began going over it "to give it a more pleasing background for paintings and tapestries."

The ambassador's daughter, Ailsa, Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, it was announced, will arrive here in time for the opening of the royal court at Buckingham Palace. She will be the official hostess during her father's regime.

City Paymaster, Hit by Auto, Dies

Harry W. Minnemeyer, 66, city paymaster, died in Mercy Hospital at 10:30 a. m. as a result of injuries received when he fell against an automobile at Diamond and Grant streets late yesterday.

The case has been turned over to the Coroner for investigation. Harold Soles, 23, of 2131 Duquesne avenue, McKeesport, alleged driver of the car, was arrested. Police were told Minnemeyer collapsed and fell against the automobile while waiting for a street car. He suffered injuries to his head.

U. S. Racer Seeking World Record Hurt

LA BAULE, France, April 26.—(AP.)—Babe Stapp, the California automobile racer, was injured today and the car in which he hoped to establish a new world speed record was destroyed when it caught fire during a trial run on the beach here.

Stapp and his mechanic were in the machine when it burst into flames about 75 yards from the start. Both jumped and were only slightly hurt.

MUZZLE CAPONE ON LINDY CASE

CHICAGO, April 26.—(AP.)—The publicity Scarface Al Capone received in the Lindbergh kidnaping case is going to make his stay in the Cook County Jail more lonesome.

United States Marshal H. W. C. Laubenheimer revealed last night he has received orders from Washington to limit issuance of passes for visits to Capone strictly to relatives or persons with "sufficient and legitimate" business.

The United States marshal was emphatic that overtures to hunt the baby made by Capone through newspapermen were responsible for the order and not the recent reports that the gangster negotiated with the Lindberghs, guaranteeing safe return of Charles A., Jr., if he were released from jail.

Laubenheimer said Capone was not being held incommunicado, as a high official at Washington said last night.

CLEARED IN KIDNAPING

DOWNINGTOWN, Pa., April 26.—(AP.)—Albert Lacher and Miss Edith Crebbe have been absolved by New Jersey authorities of any connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping case, but police today investigated what they termed "some very strange stories" told by the couple.

Chester County authorities held them in jail at West Chester on a formal charge of disorderly conduct. Detroit police asked that they be detained.

Winchell Goes West With Film Notables

HOLLYWOOD, April 26.—(AP.)—Motion picture notables are returning to Hollywood in numbers suggesting a reunion. Walter Winchell, New York newspaper columnist, arrived on a train yesterday with many motion picture folks. He is going to Santa Barbara for a rest, ordered after a recent nervous disturbance. He said he would remain until after the Los Angeles Olympic Games this summer.

Dapper Stowaway Barred From U. S.

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—The suave well-dressed man who arrived as a stowaway on the liner Ile de France yesterday under the name of Michael Romanoff, was ordered excluded from the United States by a special board of inquiry at Ellis Island today.

He protested today that he is an American citizen, but was unable to prove it.

Turkish Premier Arrives in Russia

Barricaded Vet, Wanted As Drunk, Kills Father

MILLEN, Ga., April 26.—(AP.)—A World War veteran evading arrest for intoxication barricaded himself in a hotel room here today and killed his father as a crowd sought to entice him to surrender.

The veteran, Dave Humphrey, 38, was arrested about dawn by Policeman Carey Averett, but he wounded the officer in a fight and fled to the hotel. He told Sheriff Marbach he would come out "if you'll go get my father."

The Sheriff drove five miles into the country to the home of the father, R. B. Humphrey, and brought him to the hotel, but the ex-soldier cried:

"That's not my father. You're trying to trick me."

The father then climbed to a balcony so his son could get a better view of him and said:

"This is daddy. Don't you know me, Dave?"

Dry Issue, Roosevelt Fate at Stake Today

DAVIS, BUTLER CLAIM VICTORY

Davis-Butler Race, Smith Fight Feature State Balloting

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.—(AP.)—United States Senator James J. Davis and Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, opposing candidates for the Republican senatorial nomination, both are claiming victory at today's primary.

An estimate of 250,000 plurality for Senator Davis was made by Gen. Edward Martin, State Chairman, while Butler told an audience late yesterday that he would win by 200,000 "if everybody does what they have promised me."

As Gen. Butler stepped out on the porch of his Newton Square home today, two robins in an oak tree and a break in the rain clouds led him to remark:

"Robins and a clear sky; that means victory."

William A. Adams, who campaigned as the "original anti-dry" candidate for the senatorial nomination, made no prediction regarding the outcome.

Pittsburgh voters marched to the polls today along with the rest of Pennsylvania to voice their feelings on prohibition.

With Senator James J. Davis an avowed modificationist and his opponent, Gen. Smedley D. Butler, the Pinchot candidate, a decided dry, voters had the opportunity to decide which should win the Republican nomination to the United States Senate.

Next in importance appeared to be the fight between Gov. Roosevelt and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, both presidential candidates, for Pennsylvania's 76 delegate votes to the Democratic convention.

Two Pittsburghers were candidates in state contests which were expected to produce close fights. Judge Joseph Stadtfeld was one of four candidates for the three Republican nominations to the Supreme Court bench and Ralph E. Flinn, with Pinchot support, was bidding against the organization candidate, Senator Frank E. Baldwin, of Potter County, for the nomination for Auditor General.

Locally most interest seemed centered in the efforts of Senator James J. Coyne's candidate, Coun-

Cold Keeps Pirates And Cubs Idle Again

CHICAGO, April 26. — The Pirates and Cubs are to be idle for the second time in as many days today.

Cold weather necessitated the postponement of yesterday's game, and today's contest also was called off because of the chilly breezes.

The teams are slated to play here tomorrow before the Bucs return home to open a series with the Cincinnati Reds in Pittsburgh on Thursday.

Fever Cured, Chaplin To Leave Hospital

SINGAPORE, April 26.—(INS.)—Charles Chaplin, who has been confined to a hospital here for several days with an attack of dengue fever, was to leave today.

The American screen comedian planned to continue his journey to Japan, sailing at the end of the week.

Wales Amused as Children Snatch Tie, Tramp Toes

GATESHEAD, England, April 26.—(INS.)—The Prince of Wales, investigating unemployment in this industrial region today, encountered lese majeste on a visit to a nursery school.

A tiny tot, just 3 years old, walked up to His Highness, and boasted:

The prince bent down and patted the youngster's head, exclaiming:

"So have I."

The little fellow laughed, suddenly shook the tie from the Prince's waistcoat, and ran to the arms of a horrified matron of the school, to the Prince's amusement.

The children then crowded so closely about the British heir that he inadvertently stepped on the toes of Patrick Moran, 6 years old. The Prince apologized and suggested that Patrick step on his toes, which the boy did, spoiling a good shine.

Patrick stamped so hard that the Prince flinched, suggesting he had corns.

PINCHOT CLOSES CAMPAIGN WITH ATTACK ON UTILITIES

CHARGES LINK WITH G. O. P. 'BOSSES'

Governor Likens Fight In State to War of '76; People's Rule at Stake

MILFORD, Pa., April 26—(AP.)—With a renewed attack on public utilities, Gov. Gifford Pinchot last night closed his speech-making campaign in behalf of his slate of Independent Republican candidates.

He asserted that today the War of 1776 is being fought in a 1932 setting with the taxpayers fighting the utilities to obtain a voice in their own government.

SCORES MACHINE

Asserting that the Philadelphia machine and the so-called state Republican organization realize they must win the 1932 primary "or meet oblivion," he said they were offered "a haven of refuge by the utilities," He said:

"The public utilities of Pennsylvania, firmly allied with the Philadelphia organization and firmly allied with Chairman Martin and the state Republican organization are attempting to subjugate the entire state."

"I tell you that unless you people of Pennsylvania nominate your own candidates, they will have no more voice in their own government than they did before the revolution. Do not be led astray by malicious attempts to wean the public away from the real issues by introducing pro-Pinchot and anti-Pinchot propaganda. The real issue in this election is whether Pennsylvania is going to be ruled by the utilities or by the people."

STOCK WATERED

He charged that water and light companies in Pennsylvania have written up their book values by approximately $43,000,000 "unloaded" almost $2,000,000,000 worth of securities in the state in the last five years and accumulated more than $31,000,000 a year in excess earnings by "exorbitant schedules," He said:

"That means an excess profits tax of $3 per year on each man, woman and child in this commonwealth. It is to correct these evils that the civic-spirited, decent-minded citizens of Pennsylvania are demanding common sense public utility regulation in Pennsylvania."

2,347 Candidates Seek Nominations in State

HARRISBURG, April 26.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's greatest free-for-all political race was under way today.

The impressive total of 2,347 candidates of two major parties were in the scramble for 818 political berths.

Those in the lanes leading to positions as convention delegates, alternates and state committeemen will finish today—344 out of 841 contenders. The other 548 survivors will complete only the first lap of their run, gaining the Republican and Democratic nominations to continue the sprint for 274 offices in the November general election.

The state offices, courts, Senate and General Assembly have enticed 1,354 Republicans and 993 Democrats from their normal pursuits, while 419 Republicans and 422 Democrats will be content with having a voice in the national conventions or state committees.

These totals include only those candidates entered under the banners of the two leading parties. They do not take into consideration the smaller groups whose names will appear on the ballots under the party names of Socialist, Labor, Prohibition and Independent.

Crisp Enters Race For Harris' Seat

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(AP.)—The office of Representative Charles R. Crisp today made known that the Georgia Congressman had announced as candidate for the Senate.

NAVY BILL FIRST ON SENATE LIST

WASHINGTON, April 26—(AP.)—The Hale bill to build up the Navy to the London treaty strength was given calendar preference today by the Senate Steering Committee.

The banking reform bill of Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, was placed second in order, followed by the resolution of Senator George (Dem.), of Georgia, authorizing the President to reorganize the executive branch of the government.

Fourth on the list announced by Chairman Vandenberg (Rep.), of Michigan, came the Democratic emergency road fund bill, long since approved by the House.

The resolution of Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, providing for government operation of Muscle Shoals, or for leasing the properties under a number of conditions, was made next.

Sixth and last was the Hawes-Cutting Philippine independence bill.

Appropriation bills pending and in committee will maintain their preference as will the tax bill and conference reports on bills over which the House and Senate disagree.

County Employes Lose Election Day Holiday

All county employes under the direct jurisdiction of the Commissioners were putting in a full day today. Heretofore, election day has been a holiday for all county workers except those engaged in handling the election. A resolution of the Commissioners last week requires all employes under their jurisdiction to report for work.

Commissioner C. M. Barr has required that department heads report all employes who were absent from work last Wednesday, opening day of the baseball season at Forbes Field.

ELECTION JUDGE OUT OF JAIL

Bernard P. Harkins, who lives in Beechview, conducts a restaurant in the downtown market and was a judge of elections in the Sixteenth District of the Nineteenth Ward last year, didn't spend election day in jail after all.

In fact, Harkins has been out since last Thursday, it was learned today.

Convicted of violating the election laws, Harkins was sentenced to three months to one year in March.

Last week Judge W. Heber Dithrich reduced the minimum to one month and Harkins strolled out.

HINES BATTLES CASH BONUS

WASHINGTON, April 26—(AP.)—The administration today sent its second opposition witness, Veterans Administrator Frank T. Hines, before the House Ways and Means Committee to oppose full cash payment of the soldiers' bonus.

Like Charles G. Dawes, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and first official opponent of the $2,000,000,000 new money plan to come before the committee, Hines saw service during the World War.

Hines distributed a table of estimates showing that the face value of all certificates issued was $3,641,000,000, of which $127,000,000 worth have matured, leaving $3,512,000,000 of certificates now in force. Outstanding certificates had on March 31 a loan value of $1,704,000,000.

Harvard Observatory Sights New Comet

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 26.—(INS.)—A new comet, flashing across the sky in a southwesterly direction, has been observed at Heidelberg Observatory, Harlow Shapley, director of Harvard University observatory announced this afternoon.

It is of average size and of the twelfth magnitude. Presence of the heavenly "speed demon" in the universe was originally discovered by one of the Carrasco-Garrorenas in Madrid, and named the Carrasco comet, but it was first observed by M. Muendler at Heidelberg on April 25.

return sheets before the balloting had begun, instructed them regarding assistance to voters, then permitted them to return to their duties. Voting was held up two hours.

Averbach ordered a deputy sheriff to each one of the districts of the Third Ward, and when questioned in court declared the Sheriff had such authority in his own discretion.

Fifty ballots were missing from the allotment in the Fifth District, Third Ward. Harry Wallinsky, judge of election, notified the Bureau of Elections. According to J. C. Hughes, bureau investigator, Wallinsky told him he was sleepy when he received the ballots last night and didn't notice whether the seal on the package had been broken. Enough ballots remained to hold the election.

BALLOT BOX SHORTAGE

Shortage of ballot boxes was reported in some districts, particularly in Pittsburgh, as an extra box was needed in which to deposit ballots on the $5,000,000 relief bond issue.

In some township polling places, furniture was lacking as a result of its removal to make way for voting machines which could not be used in today's election.

Early voters who went to the polling place of the Tenth District, Twenty-fifth Ward, in part of a private dwelling at 1332 Federal street, were confronted with a quarantine sign, "Chickenpox." They complained to the Election Bureau, which obtained another polling place at 1402 Federal street.

In the Twentieth District, Nineteenth Ward, the office of Alderman Jacob Yeager, voters informed the bureau they cast ballots with difficulty because of cramped quarters.

Capt. Albert Carlson, of Troop A, State Police, stationed at Greensburg, said he had 20 men in readiness to send out on any authentic call of major disorder.

It was predicted that the unofficial returns of the primary would be delayed owing to the size of the ballot.

Judge Thomas M. Marshall was sitting in Common Pleas Court today until the close of the polls to decide contests and disputes resulting from the conduct of the election in any district.

200 OVERSEERS

Close watch over districts controlled by machine politicians was assured by the appointment in Common Pleas Court of overseers for 200 districts, mostly in Pittsburgh, some in McKees Rocks, Homestead, McKeesport, North Braddock and Scott Township.

Ballot boxes in the Third and Sixth wards were ordered impounded in the custody of the Sheriff on orders of Judge Marshall. Homer S. Brown, of Anaheim street, candidate for the Legislature from the First District, in his petition stated John Scorza, also a candidate for Legislature, is a nephew of Alderman John J. Verona, ordinarily custodian of the boxes. Louis Dadowski, Jr., filed a petition from the Sixth Ward, where Alderman Luke Sullivan is a brother of Congressman P. J. Sullivan, candidate for re-election.

The names of 91 persons were ordered stricken from the registry lists in the Fourth District of Wilmerding by Judge Frank P. Patterson after a hearing on a taxpayers' petition, charging the names were illegally assessed by Joseph Capo, assessor. Investigators testified the persons did not live at the addresses given.

FEDERAL RAIDER SLAIN ON BEACH

DANIA BEACH, Fla., April 26—(AP.)—A gun battle on the beach with men believed by authorities to have been rum runners trying to land a boatload of liquor resulted in the death of D. A. Romberger, a federal customs border patrolman, before dawn today.

A fellow patrolman found the body after a day and night of mysterious happenings in the vicinity.

Yesterday a youth named Junior Campbell, fishing on the beach, was driven away by a group of about a dozen white men and Negroes.

Deputy sheriffs went to search for them and found a white man handcuffed to an automobile parked on the shore. Romberger and Patrolman C. A. Barnd joined the search last night, but soon separated in the desolate region.

Sometime later Barnd saw two flares in the sky which he interpreted as signals from Romberger, and he hurried in their direction. En route he heard half a dozen shots.

State Deciding Fates Of Smith, Roosevelt

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

Rock-ribbed in its Republicanism, the Keystone State regularly goes through the pantomime of electing candidates for various offices—most of them Republican—yet, the political fates have decreed that this year Pennsylvania is a highly important state from a Democratic standpoint.

Today the rival presidential candidacies of Al Smith and Franklin D. Roosevelt clashed head-on in Pennsylvania and the result may make Democratic history at Chicago in June. The prize consists of the 76 delegates which Pennsylvania will send to the Chicago convention. Important as they are, numerically, there is even more at stake in today's Democratic balloting—there is prestige, and the question of whether Roosevelt can be "stopped" at Chicago.

Political observers are pretty well agreed that unless Smith can come out of Pennsylvania with a respectable showing, and carry a majority of the delegates in the Massachusetts primary today, his influence at the Chicago convention will be considerably diminished. Which is another way of saying that if Roosevelt wins impressively in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts today, the chances of "stopping" him at Chicago will be scant indeed.

Opinions differ as to the outcome in Pennsylvania. "Joe" Guffey, former Democratic national committeeman, who early climbed aboard the Roosevelt bandwagon, claims that Roosevelt will walk out of Pennsylvania with an overwhelming majority of the delegates—more than 60 of the 76 delegates.

But there are competent political observers in Pennsylvania who dispute Guffey's figures. They recall that in 1928 Al Smith polled in excess of a million votes in the state, and they do not believe that enough Democratis have deserted him in the past four years to give the state's preference to another candidate.

LA GUARDIA HITS STOCK MARKET 'BALLYHOO'

"But this firm used Mr. Plumfor 15 years to carry on its ballyhoo."

Then the representative began producing cancelled checks given newspaper men by Plummer. Each time he showed a newspaper story praising Savage Arms stock.

In reply to questions, La Guardia said:

"They were paid for publicity and propaganda and their editors don't know it yet. Here is the original story sent out by the brokers' publicity agent. Here are the clippings from the newspapers. Here are the checks cashed by newspapermen."

Plummer was hired to promote Pure Oil on a retainer basis by Oscar L. Gubelman, 61 Broadway, LaGuardia produced a letter from Gubelman to Plummer retaining him to exploit the stock for one month for $2,500 cash and an option on 500 shares of Pure Oil stock.

Superior Oil was similarly promoted on May 23, 1924, Plummer distributing $1,000 in cash through a "pay-off man," whose name LaGuardia promised the chairman of the committee.

PAID $1,000

George F. Breen paid Plummer $1,000 to "get favorable publicity" for Simm Petroleum stock in 1924, the witness further said.

LaGuardia next discussed promotion of Maxwell Motors stock in 1923. He said nine financial writers were each paid $600 in March, 1923, for publicity. He showed the clippings boosting the stock. He said:

"While getting this publicity, urging the public to buy the stock, they sent out letters to stockholders urging them to hold on to their stock. They didn't want the stockholders to let go of their stock on a rising market. That was their game."

LaGuardia said the stock finally passed off the market. He asked:

"Was this ever called to the attention of the business conduct committee of the stock exchange? If it was, nothing would happen."

Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, asked:

"Can't President Whitney answer all this by saying these practices have been corrected since he was president of the stock exchange?"

LaGuardia said:

"Here's a case in 1930. Whitney was president then—and, Senator, you must remember the business conduct committee is investigating its own conduct."

FLAYS EXCHANGE

LaGuardia flayed the stock exchange leaders and New York bankers for failing to offer a "constructive leadership" during the economic crisis. He said:

"The New York bankers and brokers haven't offered us a real helpful recommendation during this whole crisis. Not one wholesome suggestion. Not one truth. Everything went their way because the American people were deceived.

"Take Mr. Whitney and Lee-Higginson brokerage firm in the Kreuger stock deal. If Whitney was president of a grocery exchange instead of the stock exchange, and Lee-Higginson were selling canned beans instead of stock, and if either acted in selling beans as they acted in handling Kreuger stock, both would be under indictment now. And yet they call us grafters."

At at executive session the committee decided to keep four checks that LaGuardia put in evidence.

LaGuardia said that on March 3, 1932, Hornblower & Weeks, a brokerage firm, sent out a statement to their customers predicting the start of a bull market. He declared:

"In the meantime, there was no such bull market; no such optimism was justified.

"Then on April 6 the same firm sent out a statement quoting John W. Prentiss to the effect that, since the LaGuardia tax clause on transfer of securities had been introduced in the House, bonds had declined over a billion dollars in value and stocks had depreciated over two billion dollars."

Anti-Dry Muddles Fight Of Mrs. Pinchot, McFadden

TOWANDA, April 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot and Louis T. McFadden wound up their campaigns for the Republican nomination for Congress from the Fifteenth District last night.

Expressions of confidence came from the headquarters of both candidates, but neutral observers are puzzled over what effect the campaign of F. C. Reichenbacker, of Honesdale, on an anti-dry platform will have.

Both Congressman McFadden and the wife of the Governor toured the district. To make the campaign even more spectacular, the state's chief executive himself has left his state-wide ticket to shift for itself as primary day approached and has come here personally to plead his wife's cause with the voters.

Four years ago Mrs. Pinchot made her first attempt to become the first congresswoman from Pennsylvania. At that time McFadden defeated her by approximately 2,000 votes. Since then Columbia, Mountour and Sullivan counties have been added to the old Fifteenth District and the situation has been changed entirely.

Jobless Stage 'Frolic,' Win Chicago Acclaim

CHICAGO, April 26.—(INS.)—One hundred and twenty-five jobless, homeless men of courage and hope had sung, danced and laughed their way into the heart of Chicago's theater-going public today.

There might have been a sympathetic ache, a furtive tear here and there among the elite, well-fed audience that attended last night's premiere of the "Breadline Frolics" at the Majestic Theater.

But, on the other side of the footlights nothing but contagious gayety and superb esprit de corps emanated from the dancing feet and the singing throats of the talented unemployed.

Besides fulfilling a worthy purpose, the variety performance was also a good show, the critics said. Sponsored by Mrs. Waller Borden, a leader of Chicago's society, the first night realized $4,000 at the box office for the benefit of the jobless.

The house was packed and the boxes and lower floor seats were occupied by the wealthiest and most prominent citizens from the city's fashionable North Shore and suburban communities. But, there was no display of opulence. Tuxedoes and evening gowns were conspicuously absent.

The audience applauded most enthusiastically when the ensemble chorused the song:

"Happy Days Will Come Again."

BEAUTY WINNER 'PUT ON SPOT,' POLICE TOLD

North Side Girl Says Gunman Fired Four Times as She Reached Home After Party

Virginia Mae Parker, recent auction bride and beauty prize winner, told Avalon police early today that she had been "put on the spot" as she entered her home at 1535 Brighton road. Four shots were fired, she said.

All missed their mark, and in a hysterical condition, she boarded a street car and rode to the Avalon police station, where she reported the attack.

LINKS STABBING

Miss Parker told police she believed an attack had been made on her life because she is a "star witness" in a recent stabbing on the North Side, in which one man was killed.

No record of the shooting was made by Avalon, Bellevue or Woods Run police. Miss Parker said, however, that the attack occurred as she was returning to her home from a party at 2:30 a. m. As she started to enter the rear door of the house, a bullet passed over her head.

TAKES REFUGE IN AUTO

As she ran from the door three more bullets were fired. The frightened girl ran across Brighton road, where she climbed into an automobile occupied by two men. She remained with them, she said, until a street car neared. Boarding the car she told the motorman of the shooting.

'HONOR KILLING' JURY AWAITS ARGUMENTS

enlisted men, charged with the murder of Kahahawai, who, the young naval officer said, confessed attacking Mrs. Massie.

Dr. Catton's recital of the oft-told story of the attack on her daughter was too much for Mrs. Fortesque and her iron pose, which has won her the admiration of courtroom spectators, failed and she broke down. Sobs racked her slender body.

Lieut. Massie, sitting by Mrs. Fortesque's side, placed his arm about her quivering figure while her sister, Mrs. Helen Ripley, patted her gently as she fought to control herself.

TEARS FOR MASSIE

Tears also brimmed in the young navy officer's eyes during Dr. Catton's testimony of the attack. Later Mrs. Fortesque regained her composure and listened dry-eyed throughout the remainder of the proceedings.

Mrs. Massie was not in court, having remained at Pearl Harbor Navy Yard at the request of Darrow.

Dr. Catton's opinion that Lieut. Massie was sane when the killing occurred coincided with those of Dr. Paul Bowers, who arrived last Thursday with him from the mainland, and Dr. Faus.

The testimony of these medical experts was laid before the jury by Prosecutor Kelley in an attempt to offset the effect caused by the defense alienists, Dr. Thomas J. Orbison and Dr. Edward H. Williams, who pronounced the naval officer mentally deranged at the time of the slaying and a victim of amnesia for some time afterward.

ACTIONS NORMAL

Dr. Catton stated he believed Massie conceived the plan to get a confession from Kahahawai after he had become convinced that he could not expect assistance from the forces of law and order. The alienist said:

"This is perfectly normal. His anger and fight mechanisms were in force as Lieut. Massie made plans to deal with Kahahawai."

Then the doctor declared:

"I find no indications in the record of ambulatory automatism, and no signs of mental disorders."

This was in direct opposition to defense contentions.

Darrow and the alienist had a sharp exchange of words. Darrow inquired:

"Why cannot this witness sit in his chair like any other witness and testify?"

TILT WITH DARROW

The doctor, constantly turning toward the jury, half raising in his chair in an effort to force home his points, annoyed Darrow to the point of exasperation.

Dr. Catton blazed:

"Does Mr. Darrow question my honesty? If so, I resent it."

"Go ahead and resent it."

Dr. Catton, referring to the testimony of Dr. Edward Huntington Williams, of Los Angeles, defense alienist, said:

"I never heard of 'chemical insanity.' I found none."

Darrow protested:

"How can he say he found no signs of 'chemical insanity,' and at the same time assert that he never heard of such a thing?"

The Chicago lawyer renewed his protests against the alienist's mannerisms.

Dr. Catton replied acidly:

"It is a habit of mine to use my hands as well as my tongue in making a speech."

Darrow looked his disgust.

MARLENE FILM FIGHT BRINGS SUIT THREAT

Studios Will Not Submit To Von Sternberg-Dietrich Dictation Over Stories

HOLLYWOOD, April 26.—(AP.)—Film studio executives promised today to carry to courts of law the challenge hurled at them by Josef von Sternberg, noted director, that motion picture artists have the right to dictate the type of stories they appear in or direct.

Von Sternberg, en route to New York, walked out of the studio when he objected to the story provided for his next production, in which Marlene Dietrich was to star.

WILL SUE DIRECTOR

B. P. Schulberg, managing director of the West Coast studios for Paramount, employer of both Von Sternberg and Miss Dietrich, said:

"We shall sue Von Sternberg immediately to the full extent of our rights in law and equity."

Meanwhile, Miss Dietrich served notice on the studios, Schulberg said, that she will not play in the film story, "Blonde Venus," unless changes are made in the story to follow the dictates of Von Sternberg.

Schulberg, however, named Richard Wallace to direct the film for Miss Dietrich, disregarding the star's threat. Schulberg said:

"If she refuses to proceed under Mr. Wallace's direction we shall immediately take all legal steps to protect our rights."

MARLENE SILENT

Ralph Blum, attorney for the actress, said no formal notice to start work on the picture had been given her and that he was waiting for the studio to take such action before he did anything. He did not say what move he contemplated.

It will take Wallace approximately four days to prepare the story for production, studio officials said. In the meantime, Miss Dietrich will not be asked for her decision, they stated.

When Von Sternberg left for New York, he said he was going to visit relatives.

ROY SCHOOLEY GRAVELY ILL

Roy D. Schooley, deposed city treasurer, was at his home in Maripoe street today, having been removed from the Ford Hospital, Detroit, where he had been for several weeks suffering from burns received when he stood too close to a fireplace. His condition is grave, according to his wife, who took a few moments from her husband's bedside to answer queries. She said:

"Mr. Schooley is very ill. His burns have improved, but his general condition is very grave. His physician has been with him all morning."

Schooley, en route to Mt. Clements, Mich., became ill from the burns in Detroit early this month. Arthur G. Burgoyne, Schooley's chief aide, was with him at the time.

2 MEN HELD IN BAAR KILLING

MIAMI, Fla., April 26.—The "masquerade murder" here last October of Sigmund Baar, son-in-law of Jacob H. Frank, Pittsburgh, has been solved with the arrest of two men, according to authorities.

While names of the men were withheld, Sheriff M. P. Lehman and Assistant County Solicitor G. A. Worley declare themselves satisfied they have the ones responsible for the murder. Baar, guest at a Halloween party, was slain by a bandit who also was dressed in costume, authorities revealed.

The costume, a Yama Yama suit, was found in the home of one of the suspects during investigation into the fatal shooting of Frank D. Palmer, Miami druggist, who was killed last New Year's eve during an attempted holdup.

Baar, authorities say, was shot when he left the party being held at the home of Saul Cohen, to investigate a disturbance. The bandits, authorities say, were in the act of holding up Mr. and Mrs. Cohen when Baar interfered.

Mr. Frank, Baar's father-in-law, is president of the Frank and Seder Department Store at Pittsburgh.

Cagney May Quit In Salary Dispute

HOLLYWOOD, April 26.—(AP.)—James Cagney, film star, is ready to quit motion pictures if his salary demands are not heeded by Warner Brothers studios, he said today. Film colony gossip indicates he is asking for an increase of $1,600 to $4,000 weekly. Cagney said if he terminates his screen career, he may seek to enter Columbia University to study medicine. He said:

Expect to Reach New Orleans by Christmas

Somewhere along the Ohio River today, two East Liverpool (O.) sisters in a rowboat are headed to meet Santa Claus in New Orleans at Christmas, terminating a trip that started yesterday from Braddock.

The two girls, Eve, 24, and Gay, 22, daughters of William H. Marshall, are graduates of the East Liverpool (O.) City High School. They have hitch-hiked in the last year through every state except those in New England. Now water travel is their hobby. Their funds exhausted by their jaunting, the sisters worked three months to save $150 for the river trip.

They arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday, paid $25 for a boat, loaded up their ukulele, phonographs, pots and pans and began to use oars for the first time in their lives. A canvas over the boat will protect them from rain. Boards will form beds across the seats at night when they tie up along the river bank. One mile an hour is the speed to which they aspire.

HEFLIN PLEADS CASE IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(INS.)—Former Senator J. Thomas Heflin (Dem.), of Alabama, acclaimed as one of the greatest present-day political orators, today held a packed Senate spellbound with what to him was the most important speech on his political career.

His voice boomed forth in a fervent appeal to his former colleagues to declare the 1930 senatorial contest "no election" and thus give him another chance to return to the Senate.

Heflin was defeated by Senator John H. Bankhead (Dem.), of Jasper, Ala., in the 1930 election. Bankhead received a majority of 50,000 votes. Heflin charged fraud and universal disregard of election laws. His charges were upheld by a minority report of the Senate Elections Committee. He won the rare privilege of addressing the Senate in his own behalf by the narrow margin of a single vote when Republicans swung the vote for him.

MOTHER DENIES GARBO TO WED

STOCKHOLM, April 26.—(INS.)—"Greta is not engaged. She has not lost her heart to anyone."

In these words Greta Garbo's mother denied a report published in London that the famous star of American films would marry when she returns to Sweden this summer.

Mrs. Gustavson, the mother, and Greta's brother, Sven, declared the report was a farce.

They admitted Miss Garbo's friendship to Wilhelm Soerenson, Swedish financier's son, to whom the London paper reported she was engaged, pointing out that Soerenson wrote a book about her. Mrs. Gustavson said:

"Yes, Greta is returning to Sweden this summer, but she has not decided whether she will return to Hollywood or not."

It had been reported the screen star would quit the film capital forever upon leaving it for Sweden.

Oil Plant in Flames After Terrific Blast

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 26.—(INS.)—A terrific explosion, which could be heard for miles today started a huge fire in the Eagle Oil Works plant, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company. The damage was unestimated.

The scene of the fire is generally known as the Black Tom area, where in 1916 an explosion in an ammunition dump caused $22,000,000 damage.

HAWAII SEEKS U. S. HEARING

HONOLULU, April 26.—(AP.)—The Territorial Legislature has been urged to ask Congress for a hearing before any action is taken on the Bingham bill to place the Hawaiian Islands more under the control of the federal government.

The recommendation was made yesterday by a legislative committee composed of leaders from both houses. The committee suggested Congress be asked to send a committee to the islands to hold public hearings. As an alternative, it proposed the Legislature send a committee to Washington to oppose the bill.

The measure embodies recommendations contained in a recent report on Hawaiian conditions by Seth W. Richardson, Assistant United States Attorney General.

FILM SEIZED ON GIRL'S CHARGE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 26.—(AP.)—Police acting under court orders forced their way into the projection room of the Strand Theater yesterday and seized the film, "The Mouthpiece," while the theater manager, Perry Spencer, sought an injunction to forestall such action.

"The Mouthpiece," Warner Brothers production, came into legal attention Saturday as Miss Ruth Fallon, 18, swore out a warrant charging criminal libel in its showing and caused the arrest of Spencer. She said, through counsel, that the picture defames the character of her father, the late William J. Fallon, legal counselor of Nicky Arnstein, Arnold Rothstein and other noted criminals of New York.

A Warner Brothers representative here today said "The Mouthpiece" would be shown at the Warner Theater in Pittsburgh in two or three weeks.

SUITOR SHOT, FATHER HELD

C. A. Boal, 46, of 214 Fourth street, Wilmerding, was being held in the county jail today, charged with having shot John Steffano, 23, of Hall Station, Patton Township, during an altercation in a ball park last night. Steffano also is being held pending an investigation into the shooting, which, detectives say, resulted from Steffano keeping Boal's 16-year-old daughter out too late after a dance last night.

Boal, detectives said, scolded his daughter upon her return, and when she told him she had been with Staffano, he went in search for her escort with a gun.

Steffano was wounded in the arm and hip. He was treated at the office of Dr. William Tomlinson, of Wilmerding.

Father Who Killed Baby Blames Crying

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 26.—(AP.)—A 19-year-old father, Joseph Coutley, accused of slapping his baby daughter, Joan, to death, told a jury his "brain snapped" because of the child's incessant crying. He said:

"She had cried for a long time and I couldn't stand the noise. I hit her, but I didn't aim to hurt her much."

The child, 9 months old, died a few hours later.

6 RUM RAIDERS HURT IN BLAST

NEW LONDON, Conn., April 26.—(INS.)—The Coast Guard patrol boat 290, from whose guns flashed the bullets that killed three men aboard the rum-runner Black Duck in 1929, was a half submerged wreck today following an explosion that sent six of her crew to a hospital.

All the injured were reported resting comfortably today after a fair night, but Second Class Seaman Paul Schuler, 25, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Machinists Mate Andrew Rhude, 26, of Scottsburg, Ind., were in critical condition.

The blast, which ended the career of the 290, occurred yesterday afternoon. Just after the boat's fuel tanks had been filled a spark ignited one of the tanks and it exploded with a blast that shook the city.

Beer, Rum Seized At Political Rally

TOLEDO, O., April 26.—(AP.)—A surprise raid by federal prohibition officers turned what was intended to be just a jolly political rally into an anti-prohibition indignation meeting in Swiss Hall here yesterday.

Two Babies Fight Death Aided by Oxygen Crews

In the South Side, six tanks of oxygen have been administered to 6-month-old Virginia Griffith at the home of her parents, 1911 Sidney street. City Physician Bernard C. Prietsch is in charge of the work.

A nine-hour fight against great odds has brought a change for the better in the condition of Anthony Pampena, Jr., 13 months, it was revealed today by Mrs. Esther Curnan, public health nurse in charge of the case. The Pampena child was stricken with measles about a week ago and pneumonia developed yesterday.

The Mines Safety Appliances Company furnished inhalators and oxygen to both children.

Ford Tells Hoover Plan For Shopmen to Farm

WASHINGTON, April 26.—After a surprise call at the White House, Henry Ford said today he had advocated to President Hoover a plan of combining farming and industry under which factory workers could save $500 a year by raising part of their own foodstuffs.

The automobile manufacturer, surrounded by newspapermen in the White House lobby, said he had been working for three months to smooth out details of such a plan. He added, however, he was not yet ready to announce its details in full.

Ford intimated that the idea he had been experimenting with on his Dearborn farm, with Ford factory hands, was to have men working in the plants spend part of their time in small scale scientific farming.

He indicated his idea would involve large factories distributing their workers over farm lands, or providing land within reach, on which, during a comparatively small part of the year, they could raise much of the foodstuffs needed for their family tables.

Asked what he had talked over with Mr. Hoover, he said:

"I told the President that we're selling all the motor cars we can make, and we're getting lots of cash—much of it in big bills. I mean by that old-style, largee size bills that might have been hidden for some time."

175 MORE TO GO FROM COUNTY PAYROLL

Mansfield Fights Firing of Laborers But McGovern Insists on 'Housecleaning'

An additional 175 employes will be cut from the county payroll within the next few days. In addition, all time keepers' jobs are to be eliminated May 1.

Decision on the additional payroll slash was made at a meeting of the County Commissioners in the Sewickley Valley Hospital, where Chairman C. C. McGovern's broken ankle is healing.

McGOVERN FOR 'CLEANUP'

The discussion brought a declaration from McGovern that he is ready to clean house from top to bottom. He declared:

"The people of Allegheny County staged a revolution when they removed the former Board of Commissioners. They demanded a change, and that meant a change of the whole personnel appointed by the old board. I believe everybody should be eliminated except a few exemptions—soldiers, widows and people in sight of a pension.

"That's what I think the mandate of the people meant at the election. I've been waiting for years to clean out the Court House. There are several entire departments that I think can be abolished and as soon as I get back on the job I am ready to do it."

MANSFIELD DISSENTS

Mansfield said:

"I am for dismissing anybody that is inefficient. I am willing to go as far as anybody else in the interests of economy and good government. But I do not think that the voters intended to separate faithful, efficient workers from their only means of livelihood. This list you are voting on has the names of two soldiers and one man almost ready for a pension, and it is composed mostly of laborers."

McGovern replied:

"I did not see this list. If it has the names of anybody who should not be fired on it they should be taken off. Incidentally some newly-appointed people have become infatuated with people from the old regime.

"When we started out we cleaned out the Commissioners' office and did a fairly thorough job. Then we reorganized the Board of the Assessment and Revision of Taxes with the idea that the new members would take over the jobs of people who are still on the payroll. So far as I am concerned these men were appointed to do the work, and if they don't they are going to get out.

"There are a lot of people who were identified with the Independent movement that should be taken in and the others put out."

RECALLS PRIMARY

This brought a reminder of the primary election from Mansfield who said:

"There were something like 80,000 Republican votes cast for Mansfield and McGovern, which I think is an indication that the patronage is not entirely a one-sided affair."

McGovern retorted:

"Lots of people who claim that they were for you and for me I wouldn't want for me. They have been against me politically and physically, even trying to beat me up. I don't know a single payroller who came out openly for me in the primary election."

BARR URGES ACTION

"You will have to get started on this program if you expect to benefit from it."

Asked by McGovern how much the dismissals would save the county, Barr said:

"That can only be determined by the department heads. The list should be submitted to them not later than Wednesday."

The Commissioners voted to eliminate all timekeepers' jobs May 1. Thereafter time will be kept by foremen in the various divisions of the county.

NAZI-CENTRIST ALLIANCE SEEN

BERLIN, April 26.—(AP.)—A possibility that Adolf Hitler's National Socialists and the Catholic Centrist party might join hands to frame a new Prussian state government was discussed today.

The Centrists, with their 67 seats in the new Prussian Diet, will have the balance of power and responsible members of the party were arguing that the proper thing to do would be to join with the Nazis and force them into joint control as a means of checking their rising power.

The Nazis have 162 seats which, added to the Centrists' 67, would give such a coalition 229 votes out of the 450 in the Diet, a small working margin.

Once the Nazis began to participate in the government, the Centrists argued, they would become more moderate and their political ascendancy would be curbed because they would find it impossible to keep all the election promises they have made.

RUSSIAN WAR 'FEELERS' OUT

By WYTHE WILLIAMS
Universal Service.

GENEVA, April 26. Chinese circles here reveal that Soviet-Japanese relations concerning Manchuria are at such a delicate point that Moscow is polling the great powers for their policies should war break out on a large scale in the Orient.

Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff, prior to his departure for Moscow yesterday, was commissioned to sound the powers to determine if Poland and other eastern European countries would be prevented from attacking Russia's western frontiers.

This was also the purpose, it is learned, of M. Litvinoff's attempt to contact Secretary of State Stimson and members of the American disarmament conference delegation, feeling that American neutrality would influence France in keeping her eastern European allies out of the ring.

I am informed Russia is hurrying the best divisions of her army to Manchuria, including highly-trained technical units and medical corps, with equipment for an aggressive campaign.

PAIR ACQUITTED IN SUICIDE PACT

HAMILTON, Bermuda, April 26.—(INS.)—Carlotta Dickson, 20, California girl, and Heinrich Kern, of Hamburg, Germany, were free today after being haled into court on charges of concocting a suicide plot.

The couple planned to row out to sea, scuttle their boat and "commit themselves to the waves." The pact was discovered by the proprietor of their hotel, who summoned the police.

They were acquitted when the prosecution failed to prove the "overt act" required by British law. The chief justice dismissed the charges after delivering a spirited lecture, in which he blamed the influence of the talkies on "neurotic and immature minds."

Denied Clubrooms, Fire Volunteers Quit

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.—(AP.)—If a fire breaks out in Llanerch, a suburb, it's "just too bad" for the Llanerch volunteer firemen are on strike and the fire house is closed. The strike followed enforcement of an old rule prohibiting the use of the fire house clubrooms after midnight. Thirteen fire fighters resigned and the rest refused to act.

If the new regulation proves successful, according to Clark, it will be made permanent.

MOONEY SCORES ROLPH ON EDICT

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—(Universal.)—Tom Mooney has made a written reply to Gov. James Rolph's denial of his pardon application.

Assailing the decision as a "second frameup," Mooney accused Rolph of having "failed miserably in your task."

The statements were contained in a letter addressed to Gov. Relph at Richmond, Va., where he is attending the national governors' convention.

Mooney, serving a life term for the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing, wrote:

"You tried to befog the real issue of my guilt or innocence behind a smoke screen of words.

"You tried to hide your bias and prejudice as a representative of capital with a representative of labor by a veritable deluge of irrelevant statements.

"You have turned your back on justice."

GAS BLAST TOLL 1 DEAD, 24 HURT

DETROIT, April 26.—(AP.)—Investigators today counted the cost of a gas blast which destroyed four shops and a flat in suburban Highland Park yesterday afternoon, and listed one dead, with 24 known injured, several of them seriously.

William Hyman, 28, a plumber employed in the shop where the explosion originated, entered the shop at the moment a terrific detonation razed the building. He died five hours later.

A break in a gas service line in the basement of the plumbing shop, apparently caused by coal unloaded into the basement, is blamed by officials for the blast. The crew of the coal truck spread the warning and firemen had been summoned when the gas exploded, apparently ignited by a fire in the plumbing shop furnace.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Betrus and their four children, one of them a 6-day-old baby, were in the second story flat. Fire Chief Floyd Baker, himself one of the injured, braved the fire which followed the explosion, to rescue Mrs. Betrus and one of the children who had been catapulted to the ground with the bed on which they were lying.

The radium, in 100 platinum tubes valued at $500 each and containing 50 milligrams each, was lent to the City of New York by the Belgian government radium foundation for a year.

'WORK-RELIEF' FOR WEST VIEW

The West View Board of Trade last night approved the proposed "work-relief plan" of C. V. Shoup, president, and authorized the executive committee to proceed with organization of merchants and civic forces of the borough. Shoup announced 50 kinds of work will be proposed in the canvass of the borough. He said:

"The 'work relief plan' is a combination of the Rochester plan, the Work-Progress Council plan and others. The city of Carlisle, Pa., developed a $100,000 worth of improvements by its campaign for relief of the unemployed. Here in West View we expect to equal that figure."

Besides Shoup speakers were Sheriff Frank Gollmar and P. J. Garvey, chairman of the "Better Painted Pittsburgh" committee.

BLAST WRECKS LANDMARK, ARSON SEEN

Explosion in Old Homestead Occurs as Sleuths Probe North Side Mystery Fire

While detectives of the bomb and arson squad were investigating a mysterious fire in an unoccupied building at 2932 East street, North Side, a terrific explosion early today ripped through the old Gass homestead at Shadeland and Gerber avenues, North Side, causing an estimated loss of $2,000. Windows in the building were shattered, fragments of the glass being hurled across the streets.

City Detective Guy Ellis said two empty 10-gallon kegs which evidently had contained gasoline were found on the second floor of the wrecked structure.

MEN SEEN FLEEING

Neighbors told detectives two young men were seen to leave the neighborhood in an automobile shortly after the fire started. Ellis said the house, which also was unoccupied, was owned by Joseph Piazza, of Luzerne road, Ross Township.

The force of the explosion blew out a rear wall and moved a recent addition more than 12 inches. Flames swept through the structure immediately after the blast, according to A. H. Braun, of 3466 Shadeland avenue.

TO QUIZ OWNER

Albert Bendick, of 309 Carver street, reputed owner of the building at 2932 East street, was ordered to appear at detective headquarters, where he will be questioned by Detective Michael Tortorelli as to the cause of the blaze, North Side police said.

Traffic in East street was tied up for almost an hour as firemen fought the blaze, confined to the third floor of the three-story building. The fire was discovered by a pedestrian.

ACCIDENT SUITS PROBED BY BAR

Attorneys' activities in 5,000 accident suits on record in courts will be subject to further investigation of the special committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association probing "ambulance chasing" and "shyster" tactics that so far has resulted in recommending 12 lawyers be subject to disbarment proceedings.

The first public report issued by the committee, which still is withholding the involved attorneys' names, was issued today. Citing the use of five investigators, the report made to the court said 20,600 filed cases were examined and 59 separate hearings held by the committee. Every attorney for plaintiffs in personal injury cases, who filed 15 or more suits in the past two years, were sent questionnaires. The committee found 142 such instances, the report said.

The investigators found the existence of at least 15 professional runners operating for attorneys. The further investigation to be held by the committee will seek to uncover unethical practices of attorneys whose actions have been closely cloaked through use of representatives.

Count teeth with others older than you

Ask those who have ALL their teeth if they ever had gum trouble

"Counting teeth" is not a very popular game. You can't find many people who will play it. There is too much embarrassment in confessing that natural teeth are missing. And there are not so many folks around who can boast two sound and perfect rows of teeth.

When teeth begin to "go," you feel that it is a personal failure. And it is. No matter how carefully you brush your teeth, they are never safe unless you care for your gums. Four out of five people past the age of forty have the dreaded gum disease pyorrhea—and pyorrhea takes half of the adult teeth which are lost.

Don't be sure that you will be among the few who escape pyorrhea. You can't "fool around" with pyorrhea. You simply must have professional dental advice about twice a year and when you take up home treatment seriously, it will pay to use a toothpaste invented by a dentist, Dr. R. J. Forhan devoted a lifetime to pyorrhea treatment. His professional formula is used by thousands of dentists and his home formula is embodied in Forhan's Toothpaste. It's the finest toothpaste money can buy, with an extra-protection feature in its special formula. Don't let pyorrhea get started. Use prevention. Use Forhan's. Use it twice a day—old and young. At all drug stores.

GOVERNORS' BID TO PRESIDENT CAUSES STIR

Hoover and Roosevelt to Speak at Same Parley; 'Political Smoke' Fanned

By RAYMOND T. BORST
International News Service

RICHMOND, Va., April 26.—President Hoover's decision to address the annual conference of governors tomorrow—the same day that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, leading candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, is scheduled to speak—today had served to fan the political smoke of the conference into a blazing fire.

The announcement at Washington that the President had been invited to address the conference came as a distinct surprise to all the governors except the half-dozen members of the executive committee.

Gov. Norman S. Case, Rep., of Rhode Island, chairman of the executive committee, revealed that the committee decided Sunday night to invite President Hoover to address the conference, Gov. Case said.

"It was my idea that we should invite the President."

Gov. Roosevelt, who is a member of the executive committee, said he voted in favor of extending an invitation to Mr. Hoover. He declared:

"Of course I was in favor of inviting the President when it was first discussed at the meeting of the executive committee."

It was not until several hours after the official announcement was made at Washington that Gov. Case admitted an invitation had been extended the President.

President Hoover will discuss the relationship between the federal, state governments and economy and taxation, while "George Washington will be the subject of Gov. Roosevelt's address. The President will appear before the conference tomorrow afternoon. Roosevelt will speak at the official Virginia George Washington bicentennial celebration in the evening.

6 KNOWN DEAD IN TORNADOES

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 26.—(INS.)—A mounting toll of human lives was anticipated today as relief workers surveyed the dismal results of tornadoes which struck wide sections of three states, leaving six known dead and property damage exceeding $1,000,000.

Originating in Eastern Arkansas, the vicious whirlwinds leaped across the Mississippi River to cleave paths of destruction across Tennessee and Kentucky.

More than 30 persons were reported injured and many of them were expected to die.

The city of Memphis narrowly escaped the violent windstorms. The heaviest sufferers were the little communities and farms about 20 miles from here where the tornadoes reached their highest fury.

Six persons were killed in Shelby County, of which Memphis is the seat. Three additional deaths were reported at Osceola, Ark.

PARK TO CONFER ON KLINE TRIAL

District Attorney Edgar H. Negley, of Butler County, today said he expects to hold a conference in a few days with District Attorney Andrew T. Park, of Allegheny County, and other counsel, to outline plans for the trial of Mayor Charles H. Kline and his deposed Director of Supplies Bertram L. Sucrop, which begins at Butler Monday.

Park has been going over the case with his first assistant, George F. P. Langfitt, and Earl F. Reed, who is to be sworn in as an assistant district attorney. Maj. A. B. Hay, an assistant district attorney, will resign to enable Park to make the appointment. The arrangement will be temporary.

Charles B. Prichard and Edward G. Coll, representing the Mayor and Sucrop, have said they are ready and it is understood Mayor Kline wants the case to proceed.

District Attorney Negley said today he knows of nothing at this time that will prevent calling of the case.

TARDIEU BALKS STIMSON PLEA

GENEVA, April 26.—(AP.)—A joint plan of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, to bring together, in their presence, Premier Andre Tardieu, of France, and Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, of Germany, for an effort at Franco-German reconciliation went awry this morning when Premier Tardieu failed to show up.

MacDonald and Stimson thought they had the French Premier's promise to meet them and Chancellor Bruening at Secretary Stimson's villa at Bessinge, but M. Tardieu remained in Paris.

Chancellor Bruening was present, however, and conferred with Stimson and MacDonald all morning. According to well-informed sources, Secretary Stimson and Prime Minister MacDonald agreed that the time had come to bring Dr. Bruening and M. Tardieu face to face and to say to them, in effect:

"Your relations and the European situation are rapidly approaching a catastrophic stage. Now what are you going to do about it?"

DeRosa Padlock Removed, Building Becomes Church

A one-year government "padlock" on a building owned by Michael DeRosa, Sr., at 6584 Frankstown avenue, was removed yesterday so the property can be used as a meeting place by the congregation of the Christ Temple Church and for the pastor's residence.

In modifying the "padlock" decree of April 8, Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker directed that DeRosa give a $500 bond against further violations of the dry law on the premises. A club and drinking rooms on the second floor of the building was raided December 16, 1931. In the injunction proceedings Joseph DeBellis was designated as the proprietor.

SEEK TO AVERT INCREASE IN SCHOOL TAX

No New Buildings Planned. Criss Says; Cites Teacher Pay as Biggest Expense

An attempt to prevent any increase in school taxes for next year will be made by N. R. Criss, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Education, he said today. He added he did not believe any new school buildings would be erected here during the coming year.

Criss said he was opposed to any increase in the present 11¾-mill rate, adding that the cost of government today should give everyone some concern. He said:

"Our salary budget totals $11,000,000, and of this sum about $8,000,000 goes to teachers who are certainly sitting on top of the world today."

Discussing the teachers' salaries and their importance as the principal item in the school budget, Criss said:

"Their pay cannot be reduced, except by an act of Legislature. That could not be done until 1933, even if it were desired. The salary cost is the big item of expense in the management of schools."

OIL MAGNATE SUED BY GIRL

NEW YORK, April 26.—(Universal.)—Robert G. Stewart, oil magnate and son of Col. Robert W. Stewart, who lost the presidency of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana after a dispute with John D. Rockefeller, Jr., over testimony at the Teapot Dome oil inquiry, has been sued for $250,000, it was revealed today.

Jacqueline (Jackie) Hunter sued young Stewart in Supreme Court. She charged Stewart, a millionaire himself and president of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company, promised he would make her his wife as soon as the second Mrs. Stewart got a divorce in Paris.

The promise, Miss Hunter alleges, was made in February, 1928. The second Mrs. Stewart was in Paris then and is there now, but at Stewart's home here it was said she is visiting Paris friends, not courts.

The present Mrs. Stewart is the former Phyllis Shaw, society belle of New York and Newport. The first Mrs. Stewart obtained a divorce several years ago.

TRANSIT BOARD SUBWAY PLAN DELAY SEEN

Backers of Snodgrass Loop Offer More Details for Study by Councilmen

A delay of at least a week may occur before the City Transit Commission presents its suggestion for a downtown subway, according to those in close touch with commissiin activities.

In the meantime, the proponents of the plan offered by Edward Snodgrass, Jr., and Norman F. Brown for a subway under Grant street are seeking to strengthen their arguments before City Council.

Plans showing greater detail of the Snodgrass-Brown loop have been drawn and are available for members of Council, it has been announced. The double track loop proposed in the Snodgrass plan will give ample track capacity to care for the South Side and Second avenue lines and in the future to take in East End cars, according to E. G. Kaltenbach, engineer who has been working on estimates under Brown's direction.

Protests against the building of the subway were received in City Council yesterday from A. H. Cline, Jr., S. H. McKee, Jacob H. Aronson, Charles S. Smith and James B. Clark. The objections were largely based on the increasing burden on the taxpayer.

OHIO COAL MEN, MILITIA MEET

CADIZ, O., April 26.—A lull occurred in Ohio's mine war today as coal operators from the eastern strike zone gathered for a conference with Adjt. Gen. Frank D. Henderson at Columbus, who has been considering recalling the National Guard troops ordered out nearly three weeks ago.

At the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company mine, near Adena, where guards several times repulsed demonstration marches, nearly 100 men had returned to work. Company officials today issued a statement explaining their side of the controversy.

Higher wages are paid at the Goodyear mine than any other mine in the district, the statement declared. The company also denied that its employes were in sympathy with the strike, which, according to the statement, came about through Communistic influences.

Employes of the Goodyear mine are given a voice in management through a workers' committee and the only requirement of mine employes is that they be American citizens. No discrimination is shown against union members, the statement also contends.

Russian Actress Reaches Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, April 26.—(INS.)—Anna Sten, young Russian actress who attained screen fame in Germany and France, was here today to begin her American film career.

Joseph A. Kelly, Steel Head, Dies

Mr. Kelly

Joseph A. Kelly, president of Reliance Steel Casting Company and vice president of the Vulcan Crucible Steel Company, died yesterday in his home in Wilkins avenue. He was a director of the Y. M. C. A. of Pittsburgh and a member of the Third United Presbyterian Church, Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania and the Stanton Heights Golf Club. Mr. Kelly leaves his widow, Mrs. Luna Gibson Kelly; a sister, Miss Emma Kelly, of Aspinwall, and a brother, Dr. George M. Kelly, of North East.

Floods Endanger Many Chilean Cities

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 26.—(AP.)—Heavy rains, causing imminent danger of floods, were worrying Valdivia, Aysen and other southern Chilean cities today. Valdivia, the capital of the province of the same name, was isolated. Trains could not enter the city and all traffic on the Valdivia River and the bay was halted.

"ASK YOUR ICE MAN"

As Their Official Pittsburgh Agency for Ice Refrigeration!

We are proud to announce this appointment, an affiliation with the local and national organizations which is a tribute to our leadership in this community. May-Stern & Co. has been selected by the ice industries to represent them in merchandising refrigerators, and to give the public the facts about the advantages of ice refrigeration. You can now come to May-Stern's and get expert advice on your refrigeration problems—a new standard of service and helpfulness in the proper preservation of foods at the lowest cost—with ice.

There Is Nothing to Equal Ice And a Modern Refrigerator

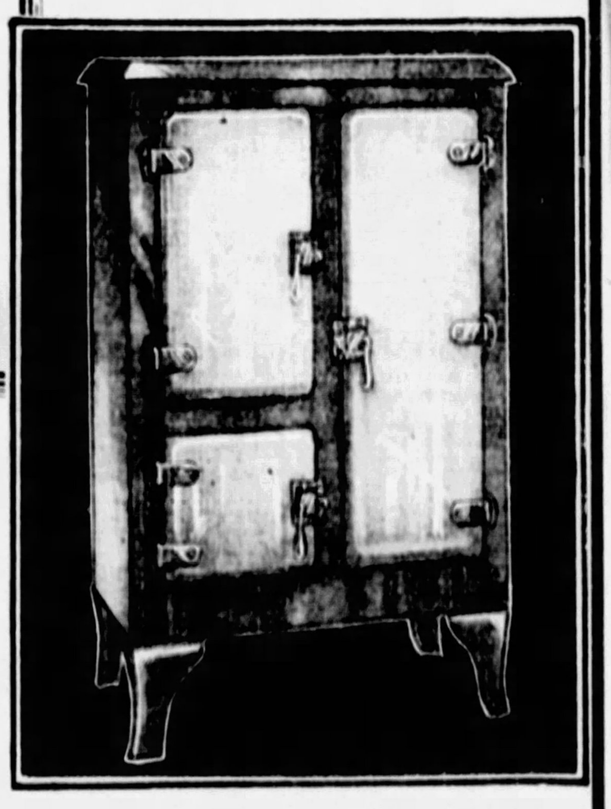
"ICE NEVER FAILS"



Big Trade-In Allowance for Your Old Refrigerator

Ed Wynn Makes Radio Debut Election Returns on WCAE Tonight

ED WYNN, famous stage comedian, faces the microphone for the first time in 30 years of professional activity when he inaugurates his new radio series with Graham McNamee over an NBC network including WCAE tonight at 9:30. As the lisping, giggling "Fire Chief," Wynn tells some of his funniest stories and answers questions. In the program theme songs are eliminated, commercial announcements reduced and a half-hour cleared for a whirl of "goofy" humor. At the present time Wynn is appearing in "The Laugh Parade," current Broadway production.

Ed Wynn

Beginning on KDKA at 9:30, Frazier Hunt's narrative recitals are replaced by a series of biographical stories of outstanding Americans, the first of which is that of Alexander Hamilton. A cast of well known actors and actresses dramatize significant episodes in the lives of the subject. Subsequent broadcasts will depict scenes from the lives of Andrew Jackson, Lafayette, Sam Houston, Robert E. Lee and Lincoln.

Election returns of the city, county, state and other states are broadcast as rapidly as received by WCAE tonight, the station remaining on the air after midnight.

Kay Donna flashed meteor-like into radio stardom last night. In a last-minute change by NBC, Pittsburgh's own Kay Cronick made her network debut in her new series, "Do You Remember?" replacing Phillips Lord in the Bowery. The former WCAE star won instantaneous acclaim, and the program promises to become one of the most popular on the air.

Program Pointers

SARAH LOGAN, contralto, who made her radio debut at KDKA in 1921 and is a real radio pioneer, presents her second program of songs within a week from KDKA tonight at 8. Included on her program are two of Charles Wakefield Cadman's songs, "I Hear a Thrush at Eve" and "The Moon Behind the Cottonwood" . . . An hour later, on WCAE, the composer himself is heard playing his Omaha Indian flute, the instrument which inspired his "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water," with Erno Rapee's Orchestra during a symphonic program of his own compositions.

Miss Logan

Louis Sobol pilots the "magic carpet" across the continent for the music of Anson Weeks' Orchestra in San Francisco and Al Gillette's Band in Portland, Ore., for WCAE listeners at 10.

Sylvia Froos sings "I'm So Alone With the Crowd," by Little Jack Little, on WJAS at 7:30.

Fan Fare

"JACK ARNOLD," the young attorney for Myrt in the Myrt and Marge series, whose legal role is done so perfectly that a number of fans have asked that he represent them in impending litigations, is really Vinton Harworth, who was well started on a stage career when radio came along and captured him . . . More than 8,000 of John McCormack's fan letters were forwarded to him at his country estate in Ireland this week . . . Arthur Allen, who recently signed autographs for 300 children, started out with "Yours Very Truly, Arthur C. Allen," falling to "Yours, Arthur Allen," and finally, exhausted, just plain "Allen."

Mr. Harworth

Ripley does most of his cartoons in the morning before breakfast . . . The most active book collector among the radio fraternity is Ben Grauer, NBC announcer, who has a library of more than 2,000 rare volumes . . . Although Art Barnett, who starts a new radio skit with Howard Lanin and his orchestra over an NBC network Friday, gives characterizations and imitations nightly at a New York supper club, he never uses make-up or costumes . . . He merely changes his expression . . . Riggs and Moke wear clothes in keeping with the color of their eyes . . . Riggs, light; Moke, dark . . . Otto Kahn, it is rumored, is interested in one of New York's smaller radio stations, and may aid in obtaining intelligent and sophisticated programs . . . Phillips Lord writes thousands of words a week, but won't use a ghost writer.

The childhood inspirations of the great poet, which later awakened the world to his inspiring work, will be interpreted by Count Chapel's young understudy.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Things You Probably Never Cared to Know!

(Proving you're a lot better off not reading the papers)

That Sidney Lenz, the bridge authority, never arranges his hands in suits. He plays them just as he picks them up. (What a fool 13 spades would make of that system.)

That an Esquimau baby wears no clothes, but is carried in a seal skin sack on its mammy's back.

That seagulls break the shells of clams by dropping them from great heights and then swoop down for the feast.

That as recently as December, 1926, the French Academy determined by a vote of 8 to 8 that dogs have memory and soul. (Somebody must have tipped them off.)

That John Tyler holds the White House record for ringing the Stork Bell, having had 14 children by two marriages.

That a man born in San Francisco and dying in New York is three hours younger than his actual age at death. (Another way of killing time.)

That half of Broadway is in the Hudson River, having been dumped there when the street was paved. (The other half is in my hair.)

That King Charles I of England (1649) was the last monarch on the English throne to have an official fool. (But how about the unofficial ones?)

That Babe Ruth's real name is George Herman Ruth, although it is generally believed to be George Herman Ehrhardt, the latter being the name of the uncle with whom he lived as a boy. (But opposing pitchers still call him Poison.)

That the reason feminine undies are usually pink or blue is that white turns yellow too soon after being laundered. (Of course this is just hearsay to a fellow like me.)

That Disraeli, who fearlessly ruled empires, always got a rash on the back of his paws when he touched violets.

That the odor of roses always made Voltaire faint.

That Emperor Charles VIth of Spain spent 10 years trying to make seven clocks tick in absolute unison and finally game up in despair. (How can a guy be a success when he's always watching the clock?)

That the only time you get a break in Scotland is when you buy land. (The Scotch acre has 6,150 sq. yds. against the American 4,840.)

That there are less than 10 buildings on Times Square, Broadway, which are over 8 stories in height.

That the average weight of the male brain is 48 ounces and that of the female is 43. (But oh, what a difference a few ounces make.)

That the bones of canned fish are softened by heat, not by oil, as is popularly supposed.

That the U. S. Biological Survey says there is no reason to doubt the statement of the French writer who said he once heard a parrot repeat the entire Lord's Prayer.

That Frederick Fradkin, the violinist, recently smashed his $42,000 Stradivarius by sitting on it accidentally.

That it is impossible to tell the difference between the taste of an apple and a piece of onion if the nose is stopped up. (Go ged a code in da head and fide oud!)

That because of the limited vocabulary it would be impossible for anybody to carry on a satisfactory conversation on modern topics in pure Latin. (Console yourself! There are plenty who can't do it in English either.)

That yawning restores the equilibrium of the air pressure between the middle ear and the outside air and the result is often a relaxation. (Is that why I've enjoyed Mourning Becomes Electra?)

That the pronunciation of the does not change when it is written ye and that it is incorrect to pronounce it yee. (Oh, yeah!)

That fish never sleep. (Another name for Broadway columnists.)

That the new English drape in men's fashions is not English at all, having been introduced by Basil Durant, the 5th Ave. style designer who once danced professionally with Margaret Hawksworth. (Up on everything, that's me!)

That they've discovered a tree-climbing fish in Asia. (There'll be no privacy for the tree-sitters this summer.)

That when Paul Whiteman played the Palace Theater, minus 100 lbs. of weight six of his musicians saw an audience for the first time and fainted of stage-fright.

-:- Plays and Players -:-

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Alvin now announces that "Hay Fever," the engagement of which was postponed, will come to that theater Monday, May 9. Constance Collier, star of the play, has recovered from the illness that caused the postponement and will be seen in the play when it comes for the usual performances, including Wednesday and Saturday matinees. The box office will sell seats Thursday before the opening. This will be the final play of the Professional Players.

* * *

The annual one-act-play contest of the Pittsburgh Drama League will begin tonight in the theater of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, Center avenue, the same well-equipped little playhouse in which the contest was held last year. It will continue up to, and including, Friday night, when the judges will decide which of the 16 groups participating shall be rated first, second, third, etc. Among the contestants will be several winners of previous contests, including the Jamestown Players of Jamestown, N. Y., the group that comes from the greatest distance. While the judges are engaged in their summing up on the final night, the audience will be entertained by the Drama League Players, presenting an original one-act play by James W. MacFarlane.

* * *

"Rhapsody in Black," starring Ethel Waters, in the Alvin, will return to Detroit as soon as the local engagement is ended. This Lew Leslie production already has played three engagements within a period of two months in Detroit this season, but is so well liked there that the company will return for an indefinite run. After that, there is a return booking in Chicago to be taken up. "Rhapsody in Black" will play the usual matinees in the Alvin, tomorrow and Saturday.

* * *

"Cynara," the Philip Merrivale vehicle that has been interesting Broadway not a little since the beginning of November, will take to the road at the conclusion of the New York run, now slated to end Saturday night. There is little likelihood that the play will be seen here this spring, as it had been tentatively listed to be one of next season's attractions in the book of the Professional Players' subscription season.

* * *

"The Good Earth," Pearl S. Buck's best seller, is to be dramatized for the theater Guild by that old dramatizer, Owen Davis, and his son, Donald, whose initial playwrightinging, "Made in Hollywood," was among the wreckage of the previous season in the Nixon . . . Harry Kahne, the upside-down-etc. writer, who used to startle us in the Davis, doesn't intend to let vaudeville die unprotested, so he is touring Ohio for the second time with his own unit show of 17 people, playing halls and theaters.

Auto Club Official To Speak at Carnot

P. J. Rickenbach, of the highway safety committee of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, will address the Carnot Parent-Teacher Association tonight in Carnot School on "What Can We Do About Our Automobile Accidents?"

Church Cast Will Present Play May 6

The Players of the Holy Spirit Greek Catholic Church will give a comedy, "Go Slow Mary," May 6, in the auditorium of Holmes Public School, Dawson street, Oakland.

'Grand Hotel' In Aldine Grand

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

You must see "Grand Hotel," cinema version of the Vicki Baum novel and play, now showing on the screen of the Aldine, which reopened yesterday for "road show" presentation of this fine picture that has all the punch of action that the old silent films had, and which diminished greatly with the advent of the talkie.

Even if you saw "Grand Hotel" just recently as a stage play, and are thoroughly an adherent of the Leontovich-Jaffe cult, you must see the celluloid version. You will not cast off any admiration you may hold for your stage idols, but you will find a place beside them in your esteem in which to set new pictures of the prominent guests in a great modern hotel, whose activities in a short time spell so much in drama.

DANCER IS EMOTIONAL

In the character of the dancer, Grusinskaya, alone, is there any similarity of interpretation, and even in that role Greta Garbo reflects her own personality in characterization that leaves little to be desired. In her moodiness as a distracted artist who sees her day done, compared to the brilliance and rejuvenation that comes through the miracle of being loved, there is the range of emotional acting that explains why the Garbo is called great. True, she has had greater parts, but she gives the dancer the best she has, and it is enough.

Here, as everywhere, there is bound to be argument as to whom among the remarkable cast the picture "belongs." Naturally, with such stars as Garbo, John and Lionel Barrymore, Joan Crawford and Wallace Beery, one might look for equality, but the script, plus the acting of the individual, has a way of settling that. If you are a woman, you probably will think that Garbo is the bright, shining light, while the sympathy of a girl likely will go to Miss Crawford, as the stenographer.

MEN WILL BE DIVIDED

Men likely will be divided in opinion as to the respective interpretations of Lionel Barrymore and Wallace Beery as Kringelein, the poor clerk, and Preysing, the great capitalist. John Barrymore, as the baron, while making the part all it should be, and winning much sympathy, likely will be considered third among the men.

Kringelein will stand out. He will be compared unfavorably at first with the stage character because the interpretation is entirely different. But the spectator will find that the pathos of the invalid clerk is intermixed with the comedy of country-loutishness, that the gentle character of the man expands and that his real nature gradually warms and his human side comes uppermost at the natural climax of the piece, his denunciation of Preysing as a murderer.

BEERY REAL PREYSING

As Preysing Beery is just about what you'd expect a hard-bitten man who had come to the top by tramping on those beneath him to be. He's not the Wallace Beery you've ever seen before. Maybe it's the dialect—but now he's Preysing.

And there's a whole raft of actors in support of the principals, with Lewis Stone, Tully Marshall, Jean Hersholt prominent.

"Grand Hotel" is just about the best photoplay treatment yet made of a stage play. First, because the possibility of widely diffused action that is essential for the best in pictures. Second, because of the opportunity to give the picturesque angle prominence in intriguing shots of many places in a hotel so opulently appointed that the title is merited.

Music-Maker

Kiki Roberts In Academy

Marion "Kiki" Roberts appears in the regular stock production of George Jaffe's players, "The Gangs All Here," in the Academy. Her appearance comes in the second act and she is on stage about 20 minutes. A large audience last night greeted "Kiki" in a warm manner and at the close of her act she received an outburst of applause. Miss Roberts is a dancer. "The Gangs All Here" is in two acts and 35 scenes. The cast is headed by Eddie Kaplan and Harry Fields, comedians. Jyce La Rue, Mildred Cozierre, Darlin' Lucky and Naomi Wiggins are among the featured players.

'Rah-Rah' Collegiate Is No More

The "rah-rah" college man is no more! Not only is "collegiate" a distinct stigma on the social standing of university students, but it also is considered to denote a lack of tonsorial experience. This was the advice of technical experts from Yale who are putting authentic touches to the atmosphere of "Huddle," Ramon Novarro's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle.

"The old days of the 'snappy undergraduate' have given way to the very latest type of college man who wears the most sombre type of business clothes and maintains a very professional attitude," these Yale men say.

Colman Cast as Polish Lancer in Picture

"Way of the Lancer," an adventure story of the famous Polish cavalry regiment that fought with the Russian Army during the World War, written by Richard Boleslavski in collaboration with Helen Woodward, will be Ronald Colman's next picture, Sidney Howard is adapting its narrative to the screen in association with King Vidor, who is to direct. "Way of the Lancer" replaces "The Brothers Karamazov," which is deferred until later in the season.

Walter Huston to Play Missionary

Walter Huston, whose "Abraham Lincoln" was one of the highlights in United Artists releases a year ago, is practically set as the missionary in "Rain," which will be made on the forthcoming United Artists program, according to advices from Hollywood. "Rain," as previously announced, will have as its star Joan Crawford, the M-G-M star, who was borrowed by U. A. for the picture.

Ladies G. A. R. Home Marks Anniversary

The forty-second anniversary of the Ladies of the G. A. R. Home, Hawkins Station, will be observed Thursday with a luncheon, needlework display, followed by a dinner at 6 p. m. The home cares for wives, sisters and daughters of Civil War veterans.

Ethel Waters Still Bubbles In Chocolate Revue Full of Rhythm

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Dancing that seems to be produced by a galvanic battery, singing that seems lined with velvet, again came to Pittsburgh yesterday when Lew Leslie's "Rhapsody in Black" opened at the Alvin Theater with that luscious comedienne Ethel Waters twinkling in the stellar zenith.

If you have not heard Ethel Waters sing at the wash tub; if you have not seen her awaiting her Prince Charming; if you are unacquainted with her lofty principles and practical morality as a dance hostess, then you don't know one of the most delightful comediennes that has come from Dixie via Harlem.

But she is even more infectious in that song, "You Can't Stop Me from Loving You," in which Blue McAllister plays the cherubic gigolo whom she terms her "suntan Clark Gable." And last night, being in particularly high spirits, she sang her whole repertoire, from "Am I Blue?" to "Sleepy Time Down South," from "Dinah Lee" to "Ribber Stay 'Way from My Do." The audience liked her and could not get enough. She gave them plenty, and they howled for more.

Mr. Seibel

This colored revue is different from most of the Aryan shows of this type. It relies upon the merits of the performers, with no attempt to dazzle or to stun the olfactory nerves of the audience by nudity or fetid humor.

THAT VERSATILE VALAIDA

Besides Ethel Waters, there is the versatile Valaida. This lady first appears as conductor of the orchestra—an orchestra of humanized jazz—and in that place she astounds the audience by her sinuous and electrical performance. Then she blossoms forth as a dancer, as a singer, as a comedienne, until she has established herself as a Jane-of-all-trades.

And there are the Berry Brothers, one of whom was ill, but the other gave such an exhibition of gyratory rhythmics that he almost stopped the show.

And there is Cecil Mack's Choir, who sing spirituals with true fervor and real voices, led now by Ernest Boyd and again be Eloise Uggams or that delectable Geneva Washington. Then they sing "Eli, Eli" as if they belonged in the synagogue, and a Russian ballad as if they had come from the Volga. That choir is worth hearing.

DANCING WITH RAPTURE

As in most of the colored revues, the dancing vies with the singing in excellence. These people dance with rapture. As Emerson said of Fanny Elsler, it is religion. Besides Valaida and the Berry Brothers, Blue McAllister furnishes rhythmic steps in his "Dream of the Chocolate Soldier," with Pike Davis' orchestra putting new kinks into Victor Herbert.

Dusty Fletcher and Florence Hill, a pair of terpsichorean comedians overflowing with bucolic ecstacy, also scored a hit. In fact, it was a performance that kept the audience in high humor from first to last—without scenic blaze or off-color skits—just by the ability and agility and amiability of the performers. And a great many people will prefer these pure chocolate drops to the spotted lilies of similar Aryan spectacles. Which ought to mean another good week for the Alvin in spite of daylight saving and the thermometer!

Arlen Plays In Drama Of Fish

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 26.

Dick has signed at Warners to play one of the three main roles in "Tiger Shark." This is Howard Hawks' epic of the tuna fishing industry, in which Edward G. Robinson and Zita Johann have the other two featured parts. Warners are borrowing Miss Johann from R-K-O, where she recently signed a contract.

Richard Arlen

It now develops that Arlen also was approached to play the lead in "Blessed Event," but turned it down in favor of the Hawks film, which will be a special, requiring several months in the filming.

Dick says he and Paramount never got beyond the amicable stage in their recent contract discussion. He lauds studio officials for their consideration and they make no secret of their satisfaction with Dick's work in his latest picture, "Sky Brides."

Going to work for Warners will put an end, of course, to the proposed Arlen trip to Europe.

DAILY GOSSIP

Add to little dramas of Hollywood, the suppressed excitement when Marlene Dietrich made her entrance yesterday in the Paramount lunchroom. Looking very lovely, in yellow and brown, the star appeared entirely unaware of curious eyes that pursued her as she and her attorney crossed the room and took their seat at a corner table. Followed a period of animated conversation on their part, while the crowd waited. Then entered Josef von Sternberg, very jaunty in white polo coat, white sport suit, white shoes and carrying a white hat. He went over to Miss Dietrich's table, where she greeted him warmly. In a moment, she rose and the two of them made their way out of the restaurant. At last the crowd relaxed. Lunches were resumed.

Joan Crawford

Paramount has changed the title of "The Ten Commandments" to "Forgotten Commandments." . . . Joan Crawford has received dozens of letters from dog lovers sympathizing with her over the death of her scotty, "Woggles." One woman offered to let Joan have her pet dog . . . Dick Barthelmess has arrived here.

FLIES TO HOLLYWOOD

Warners report Glenda Farrell is on her way here by plane to repeat her stage role in the screen version of "Life Begins." Now that their plan has received so much publicity, the studio has decided to retain the original title of the maternity hospital melodrama. For a while it was called "Woman's Day."

Comedy Star

Fairbanks Returning To Home Port

With his new picture complete except for the usual pick-up and tie-in shots which must be made at the studio, Douglas Fairbanks, that modern Robinson Crusoe of the South Seas, is sailing with his company from Papeete, Tahiti, for San Francisco, and will arrive in the film capital May 9, thus ending his latest and most adventurous film junket.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Exact Price

THE STAR and his press agent turned up their coat collars as they stepped from the stage entrance. It was one of the coldest nights of the winter, and the star was anxious to get to the Friars Club for his pinochle date.

"I never felt so cold," he muttered, "See if you can rustle up a cab, Jack. I'll wait here while you—"

He stopped abruptly. A man had stepped up to him. A tattered bird with cracked shoes and his lips blue from the cold. He spoke through chattering teeth.

"Hello, H——— S———," he said.

Both the star and his publicity man looked at the ragged figure. The actor, a great character and one of the finest chaps on Broadway, nodded politely.

"How are you?" he replied vaguely. He was about to move on. Just another touch, he imagined. The man stopped him.

"Don't you recognize me?" he asked.

"Nope," he returned. "Sorry. Don't know you. And I know you'll excuse me now. It's pretty cold for a long chat, you know."

"Look again," he requested. "Are you quite positive that you can't recognize me?"

The actor was growing annoyed. Enough was enough.

"Listen, buddy," he cried, "I've told you twice—"

His words trailed off as his eyes suddenly opened wide. Then he grinned.

"Good night!" he exclaimed. "It's J——— B———. Well, old monk-ey—am I glad to see you again! It's been years and years and years. Well, I'll be doggoned!"

The man smiled.

"Glad you remember me," he murmured. "It's good to see you again, too. But I'm not going to take up much of your time. I'm here, as you probably suspect, to ask you for some money. If you can help me, I'll appreciate it a great deal."

The star didn't hesitate for a second.

"I'm tickled to death to do anything I can for you," was his assertion. "Depression or no depression, an old pal is an old pal. How much do you want?"

The man shrugged his shoulders.

"You'll probably think I'm a little crazy," he replied, "but I'm really perfectly sane. Too sane, I guess. I need just $35—and I want it to buy a gun."

The actor was startled.

"A gun?" he repeated. "What's the big idea?"

"For the simplest thing in the world. I'm tired of everything in the present and I can see nothing whatsoever in the future. I am going to kill myself.

"I saw the gun I wanted this afternoon. The place doesn't close until midnight, and I can still get my gun. It's a very pretty gun. But it costs $35. Could I have that much from you?"

The man was speaking as though he was having a polite discussion about the weather. The actor looked at him suspiciously, and then broke into a sudden laugh. He winked at his press agent and drew forth the money.

"Here, J——— B———," he chirped. "Here's fifty dollars. And stop talking about such nonsense as suicide. Buy yourself a good feed, a pint of rye and a soft bed. You'll feel better in the morning."

His old friend shook his head.

"I don't need $50," he insisted. "All I want is $35. Just enough to get me what I want. Please, kid. Only $35."

The star laughed again and slapped the man's shoulder.

"Take it old boy. And keep it. I've got to get down to the Friars Club before I turn as cold as a dramatic critic's heart. Drop into my dressing room tomorrow and we'll chin about old times."

"I wish you'd take back the other $15," he muttered, "because I really won't need it. But if you won't—I guess you won't. Goodby, kid, and thanks a million times."

It was almost four hours later when the star returned to his suite in the Park-Central Hotel. He had had a pinochle session that, for him, had turned out extremely well. He had only lost $150.

He yawned mightily and began to undress. The phone rang. The actor picked it up lazily.

"Lo," he grunted.

The voice on the other end was extremely businesslike.

"Sorry to bother you at this hour, Mr. S——," it said, "but it can't be helped. This is Police Lieut. Donovan, —— precinct. We just picked up an old bum around the corner from here. He's dead as a doornail. Blew his brains out with a new revolver.

"It probably doesn't mean anything, but there was a note in his pocket addressed to you. Want to drop by in the morning, or would you want me to read it now?"

The star wet his lips.

"It might be just as well," he murmured, "if you read it now."

"Okay," returned the lieutenant. "Just a minute, now, till I open it. Here we are. There's some money attached to the note, Mr. S———. A ten and a five. Fifteen dollars in all.

"And the note is very short. 'This is my last will and testament,' it reads. 'I hereby bequeath the enclosed $15 to my old friend, H—— S——, the actor. Because I still insist that I do not need it.'" . . .

Niagara Brink Nap Suicide Plan Fails

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., April 26.—(AP.)—Henry Brownley, 53, who gave a New York city address, hit upon a novel plan to end his life, according to Patrolman Joseph Klein, of the Niagara State Reservation police. Klein said he found the man asleep on the river bank a short distance above the falls. He was lying between a guard railing and the water's edge.

Klein said when he asked Brownley what he was doing the man replied that he had picked out the dangerous spot in the hope he would roll into the river during his sleep and be swept over the falls.

SEEK SCORE IN RELIGIOUS RIOT

The men sought and those under arrest are alleged to have been part of a mob which pelted members of the Pentecostal Society with mud and stones during melees in which one man was stabbed in the arm and two houses were damaged by heavy missiles.

The series of outbreaks, the first of which occurred last Thursday, were the result of trouble which had been developing for two years. There had been minor disturbances during that time.

Special Session Set Tentatively May 9

By MARK SHIELDS

Gov. Pinchot has tentatively fixed Monday, May 9, as the date for calling a special session of the Legislature to deal with unemployment relief and rehabilitation of business, hard hit by the economic depression.

Mr. Shields

No official notice of the session is expected for several days, though if the date is finally fixed upon, announcement may come while the Governor is absent from Harrisburg at the national conference of Governors, to be held the latter part of this week.

Mr. Pinchot, it is known on the highest authority, has been discussing the program of legislation for such a session with members of political factions opposed to him. These discussions have been carried on through a third party, Attorney General William A. Schnader. Over the past several days Schnader has been in conference with Regular Republican leaders, seeking to induce them to agree with the Governor on relief plans which can be swiftly approved by the General Assembly.

* * *

Governor's Manner Not Universally Approved

The Governor's circuitous manner of dealing with the regulars has not been received with universal approval. One of them high in the councils of the organization told me last week that when he sat down to talk legislative program he wanted to talk to the principal, Mr. Pinchot, rather than to any intermediary.

Despite this standoffishness, it is apparent that Mr. Pinchot realizes any effort to call a special session of the Legislature without preliminary planning and an effort to placate organization leaders inevitably will result in failure.

The tentative date, May 9, is predicted on the hope that a complete rehabilitation program can be passed within two or three weeks, thus not colliding with the meeting of the Republican state committee at which Mr. Pinchot and the regular organization will struggle for party control.

* * *

Today's Results Will Effect Negotiations

The results of today's election will have a material effect on the negotiations leading up to a special session. Should legislators and state committeemen supported by Mr. Pinchot be preponderently successful the Governor will be able to impose conditions upon the organization. If, on the other hand, as seems most likely, the Governor loses the majority of the state committee and legislative fights he will be compelled to make concessions to the organization if he hopes for any successful outcome of a special session.

For example, in Allegheny County alone the Governor stands to lose in a special session much of the support which blindly followed him in the regular session of 1931. This will be brought about by the split between the Governor and Senator James J. Coyne, who, together with Mayor Kline, controlled the majority of the Allegheny County membership in the last session. Unless the Governor can win a majority of the members from Allegheny County in today's primary the present membership which would participate in the special session will go along with him only on its terms.

France Only Name On Ballot for President

If the regular candidates for delegate to the National Republican Convention in the Thirty-fourth Congressional District are successful in today's primary, and if these candidates live up to their pledges, then that outstanding national patriot, former Senator Joseph I. France, of Maryland, will get at least two votes in the Republican National Convention.

Harry E. McWhinney and James H. Duff, two regular candidates for delegate from the Thirty-fourth District, profess on today's ballot a promise "to support popular choice of party in said district for President."

The only name appearing on the Republican primary ballot as a presidential candidate is that of Mr. France. President Hoover can thus expect no help from Messrs. McWhinney and Duff.

This is one of the most diverting of many ludicrous incidents in today's primary, and is respectfully called to the attention of that essentially orthodox and regular leader of the Republican organization in Pennsylvania, State Chairman Edward Martin.

Mark Shields Wednesday at 6 p. m. over Station WCAE will discuss the results of today's primary in the county and state and as they affect the national campaigns.

CARMEN AWAIT MEDIATOR IN PAY DISPUTE

International Union Official Expected Here; Sentiment Of Men Opposes Strike

Pending arrival of a representative of the international organization, no statement will be made by the wage committee of the Street Railway Employes Union regarding refusal to accept a voluntary wage reduction of 10 per cent, suggested by the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

It is believed that the international union will send a man here today or tomorrow to help mediate the differences, the wage committee of the union and the railway company having agreed on all points except wages.

While the existing wage scale expires at midnight Saturday, there is no disposition on the part of the men to quit work, if an adjustment has not been completed by that time. The wage committee has made no statement to that effect, but it was learned that is the attitude of its members.

PITCAIRN STORE ROBBER SOUGHT

Chief of Police W. C. McDowell, of Pitcairn, today is continuing investigation of the holdup of a P. H. Butler store at 800 Brinton avenue, when a well-dressed gunman yesterday stole $50 from a woman clerk 10 minutes after she opened the place.

Mrs. Rosella Doria, 35, of 110 Shaw avenue, Turtle Creek, told McDowell she opened the cash register at the robber's demand for money and he said:

"I don't want that kind of money. I want the wallet you hid under the counter."

When she handed him the wallet, he removed the $50, threw the wallet on the floor and leisurely walked from the store, the woman said.

TWO ARRESTED IN CAFE HOLDUP

When Harold Weinstein, manager of Weinstein's Restaurant at 1209 Fifth avenue, early today told a prospective customer that they had no cheese sandwiches because of the Passover, the man replied indifferently:

The "customer" pulled a gun to emphasize his remark and Weinstein replied:

Weinstein's pockets yielded $224 and the register $17.

A short time later the suspect was captured in Congress street. While police were questioning him a second man interfered. Both were taken to Center Avenue Police Station. There they were docketed as James McDermont, 32, of 760 Loretta street, and his brother, Norbert, 34. They were charged with being suspicious persons.

URGES VACANT LOTS CLEANED

Immediate inauguration of a cleanup campaign on vacant lots throughout the city was suggested today by James Slean, of 1661 Westmoreland avenue, in a communication to City Council and the Department of Public Works.

Slean called councilmanic attention to the fact that hundreds of vacant properties throughout the city were cluttered with refuse and debris.

He asked Council to order a cleanup by property owners and if the order went unheeded to have the sites cleaned by city employes and have property owners charged for the service. Council took the matter under advisement for discussion at a committee meeting tomorrow.

Public Doesn't Like Wall St.'s Piccolo Playing

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

It was only Percy. But it's a start.

He sang the Wall Street Blues last week before the U. S. Senators. In his own inimitable words:

"My losses were terrible."

Public is just realizing how it was taken in the street. The big guys are like piccolo players running the scale.

They played the market all the way up and all the way down again. And it was music all the way.

After John Public was out the head men started to nibble on one another.

It was a case of dog eat dog and don't wait for the parsley.

Percy's investigated moans prove that the rich have their troubles even if they can afford 'em.

ESCAPE INQUIRY PUSHED BY MARSHALL

Saw Blades Smuggled by Convict Under Lapels of Overcoat, Sleuths Believe

Search for Donald Doane, 26, who sawed his way to freedom from a cell in the Central Police Station yesterday morning, spread throughout a dozen eastern states today.

Meanwhile, Assistant Police Superintendent B. R. Marshall continued his investigation of the escape which Doane effected by sawing two bars of his cell and two of a window. He was believed to have concealed the saw blades in the lapels of his overcoat.

Doane was arrested Saturday after he attempted to redeem an expensive ring and a watch which, among other jewels, had been stolen several days before from an East End residence.

Following his arrest Doane admitted he escaped from the Massachusetts State Prison at Charlestown last July, after he served three months of a seven-year term for robbery.

JOBLESS PARTY LEADER SEEKS NEW MERGER

Staley in Omaha to Make Overtures to Farmer-Labor Chieftains in Convention

OMAHA, Neb., April 26.—(AP.)—Leaders of several political groups, here to attend the national convention of the Farmer-Labor party, today found themselves in accord on a program of "prosperity through government banking."

Among those proposing that governing bodies enter the banking business were "Gen." Jacob S. Coxey, Mayor of Massillon, O.; A. L. Staley, of Pittsburgh, national chairman of the Jobless Party, and William F. Kane, of Philadelphia, national organizer for the Jobless Party.

Col. Frank Elbridge Webb, of San Francisco, Farmer-Labor candidate for President in 1928, arrived for the convention, which opens formally today.

Staley, while in St. Louis, effected a merger of his party with W. J. (Coin) Harvey's Liberty Party. He came here in an effort to seek a further merger with the Farmer-Labor group, which heretofore had consistently refused to consider fusion with other groups.

Roy M. Harrop, of Council Bluffs, national vice chairman of the Farmer-Labor Party, commented:

"If we can't amalgamate, the country will disintegrate and Communists will take it up the creek with them."

WORKERS HEAR RENEWED PLEA FOR FUNDS

Mathews Sees Exhaustion Of Resources in July; Men's Team Reports Due

Both men and women teams were at work today in behalf of the Family-Help-Family campaign to raise sufficient funds to provide for 28,000 needy households in the county. The men's groups, divided into four divisions, were to meet today for a report luncheon in the William Penn Hotel. The women launched their "cleanup drive" yesterday and will hold their first meeting Friday in the hotel.

Maj. Philip Mathews, a member of the Board of Control of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, at the women's meeting yesterday announced that the entire operating expense of the emergency association since it was started more than a year ago has been less than 1½ per cent.

DENIES, FUNDS ADEQUATE

He pleaded with the workers to make the campaign a success and discouraged impressions that there is sufficient money now available to provide all the needs of the destitute families. He also urged support of the city bond issue, to be voted upon today.

Maj. Mathews declared that with all the money available from the Talbot bill, and from the city and county emergency appropriations, all funds will be exhausted by July 11.

He declared that even though a special session of the Legislature were called and more relief bills passed, the earliest the money could be available would be October 11. This means, he said, that there can be no funds for relief work between July 11 and October 11, unless the bond issue were passed and money was available.

WILL WORK IN SCHOOLS

EXTORTIONIST FIGHT KILLS 3

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., April 26.—(AP.)—Henry Allegrucci, 58, shot and killed two alleged extortionists in defense of a friend last night, and was slain himself in the gun fight.

The shooting occurred at the home of Arthur Cioni in Langleyville, a nearby village, when Peter Larocca, 40, and Vincenzo Manteller, 40, both of Springfield, Ill., called with a companion to enforce Cioni's said payment of $1,500.

Allegrucci, who had agreed to help Cioni in anticipation of the visit, killed Larocca with a shotgun blast as he advanced to the door with a machine gun. Larocca's companions opened fire and in the exchange Allegrucci was killed and Manteller was wounded.

Despite his wounds, Manteller fled with the third man in an automobile and state police were summoned and gave chase. They punctured the tires of the fleeing car after a 40-mile race and forced it to stop. Inside lay Manteller dead. The third man escaped.

M. E.'S STUDY RITUAL CHANGE

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.—(AP.)—A proposal to drop the phrase "With all my worldly goods I thee endow" from its marriage ritual, may be considered by the Methodist Episcopal Church at its General Conference in Atlantic City next week.

This and other questions for discussion were outlined in a paper read by the Rev. A. E. Piper, Reading, Pa., at a meeting of Philadelphia pastors yesterday.

Other suggested changes include: A revision of the burial service to omit the phrase "from ashes to ashes" and substitute "something more appropriate and not so cruel."

An appeal for admission of women to the General Conference.

The election of bishops for four years instead of for life as is the present custom.

GUARD DONOHOE GUN HUNTERS

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 26.—Following the discovery of 30 sticks of dynamite at the scene of the search in the Monongahela River at Nemacolin Ferry for the murder gun in the John F. Donohoe case, it was officially decreed that machine guns would be used to guard the men in charge of the operations.

Officers believe the explosive was planted with the intention of killing or injuring the six men who manned the magnet boat and dragged the 400-pound electrified drum along the river bed to attract all iron or steel objects.

Officers armed with machine guns will be stationed at the scene of the search both day and night, while County Detective Jack Hann with his machine gun will be on guard for the greater part of the day. A threat that nitroglycerine may next be used by the plotters may result in a federal investigation.

Good People Do Not Always Get the Best Breaks

What's the use of being good if the fellow who has been bad is forgiven and given an equal break?

That was D. Leaste's lament, and he was plenty sore. For, according to his story, he had been a model lad.

But was Congress pinning a medal on him because of that? Or were the girls rewarding him with sweet kisses and adoring sighs?

Not at all! Instead, certain reformed rakes seemed to be getting all the applause! So D. Leaste had just about decided that goodness didn't pay.

READER AGREES

And now comes Spike to agree with him.

"What's the use of being good," sez he, "if you don't get some special attention?"

Also he wants to know why gals will pass up an A No. 1 good boy and fall for some hombre who has been helling around.

Can you tell him?

Dear Sally:

"I've just read D. Leaste's letter and your answer. I am of something the same opinion, but within limits.

"I think you rubbed it into him too hard. But what I'd like to know is—why be good, when the fellow who has gone the limit comes out ahead in the long run so many times? I can't quite grasp that.

"I am a young man of 26; so you see I have had time to see a few things. I am no angel, although I have always tried to keep myself clean and do the right thing, but it seems it hasn't been much appreciated.

"And every day you see some fellow who has roughed around, and gone with the wrong kind of women, end up by marrying some good and charming girl.

"Is there no reward for the fellow who stays good? Why do nice girls turn down fellows who have stayed decent and clean, and marry the other kind?

ENTITLED TO CREDIT

"If these good girls prefer men who have led clean, decent lives, why don't they prove it? At present they seem to have a strange way of rewarding a fellow for turning down all the chances there are for a thrill in helling around.

"Most men do hell around these days. For that reason I think the one who doesn't is certainly entitled to some credit. After all, there's a lot of fun and thrills in busting loose and being bad now and then. If you pass them up, shouldn't you get the breaks in return?

"SPIKE."

Well, son, just why are you being good, anyway? So you'll get paid for it? Or because you have an inner fineness and decency and self-respect, and want to be able to look yourself in the eye without blushing?

It is perfectly true that good people don't always get all the good breaks. Does that mean that goodness "doesn't pay"? It does not. It is a pretty poor specimen of a human who is good only because he thinks he'll get a big bouquet for it, or because he's afraid of what may happen to him if he isn't.

Real goodness is its own reward, and a really sincere, decent citizen gets plenty of kick out of his own decency, whether other people appreciate it or not.

But decency isn't everything in this world, son.

It's one thing to be good, and quite another to be agreeable. And that explains the mystery which is peeving you so—namely, the riddle of the bad egg who gets the good breaks.

OFTEN GROUCHY

He doesn't get them because he's been bad. He gets them because he is an interesting, generous, lively, friendly soul, which is something that the decent citizen frequently isn't.

Good folks are all too often grouchy folks. They are also apt to be lazy folks, who expect all the rewards to be handed to them on silver platters, just because they haven't served a jail sentence.

But rewards don't come that way. We must work for popularity and success, whether we're good or bad.

It's a grand thing for you, personally, to have a clean conscience, but that's no particular treat for the other fellow. You must possess and give more than that if you want to win friends. You must possess humor, tact, generosity, tolerance and sympathy—all those gracious qualities which serve and win other lives. And all too often the "bad" man has these qualities and the good man lacks them.

So can the grouch and get a little gaiety, Spike.

One's Opinion of Anyone Should Be Based on Personal Experience—Fay King

I HAVE REASONS FOR THINKING OTHERWISE
DON'T CHANGE YOUR OPINION OF ANYONE BECAUSE OF ANOTHER'S OPINION
BUT HE WAS ALWAYS SQUARE WITH ME IN ALL OUR DEALINGS

By FAY KING

Your opinion of any one should be based only upon your own personal experience with that person.

No matter what others may say, good or bad, you can only be absolutely positive of what you yourself know.

It happens that I have a very poor opinion of a certain person who is always praised. My personal experience has proved to me that that person is not worthy of all the good things said.

But I do not go about trying to change the opinions of those who have reasons as convincing as mine to think otherwise.

It is enough to be sure—and silent.

For the adverse opinion of others could not change my good opinion of anyone I personally found worthy of it!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Danger of Tuberculosis Greater in Time of Want

We have economic conditions that mean as sure as fate that the tuberculosis death rate will increase. Essential to its prevention are good food, fresh air, sunlight and rest. How are people to get these if they haven't any money?

Dr. Copeland

We have had a period of economic prosperity in America, coinciding with progress in overcoming those conditions which predispose to tuberculosis. With better living conditions, the disease has been decreasing.

But when people huddle around the stove, a whole family sitting in one room, you have all the makings for the spread of tuberculosis. How many men, women and children have done that this last winter? Millions of them.

The mind of the tuberculosis patient should be kept free from worry of every kind. His surroundings must be made as cheerful as possible. While it is almost invariably true that the patient has the feeling he will be better "tomorrow," yet there is an inner sense of discouragement that goes with this disease, a quickened imagination as the body becomes weaker. The happier the outlook may be made for the patient the better.

But it's hard to be happy if poverty exists. The advantages we have won in the war against disease will be lost if we cannot find ways to feed, clothe and house the toilers of America.

Twenty-five years ago every seventh funeral was that of a consumptive. Today, as the result of well-directed efforts against the white plague, tuberculosis has become one of the minor causes of disease and death.

The essentials in wiping out this agent of the Grim Reaper are the food and shelter that go with high standards of living. If we permit the heads of 10,000,000 families to skimp on food, to lessen the milk supply of the children and to take less than their quota of nourishment, tuberculosis will thrive as it did in the slums a generation ago.

The palatial homes are in danger, too, when tuberculosis and other diseases of undernourishment thrive in the tenements. Through the servants, clerks in stores and offices, and the thousands and one contacts of life the germs of disease, which thrive in poverty, are carried to the children of the rich. Nobody is safe unless all are safe.

Money must be supplied in generous amounts, to the end that there shall be no needless deaths from a preventable disease. Every man, woman and child in America has a direct, personal, selfish interest in this matter. Let us exert every effort and make every sacrifice to end the ravages of dread tuberculosis.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

What's to be done about weak ankles? Chuck spiked heels; they prevent a firm foothold on the pavement. Try kicking exercises when the feet are bare. Massage with a mixture of two ounces of alcohol and two ounces of olive oil. Make a bracelet of the fingers, send them circling round the ankles. Follow with cold compresses.

Except for alligator pears and bananas all fruits are non-fattening. The dumpling-shaped baby can consume green salads, fresh fruits and leafy vegetables without adding an ounce to her weight. And she will be getting the good vitamins she needs for the well-being of her complexion. Buttermilk is good food for her.

Hints for the Household

Spices tied in muslin and boiled in vinegar, and then removed, make a "tidier" pickle.

Leather upholstery should be washed with warm water, the flannel being first wrung out well. Furniture cream may then be used for polishing.

Hooks and taps in kitchen and bathrooms may be painted with enamel to prevent rust-marking on towels and cloths which are hung up while wet.

Before purchasing chamois gloves, hold them up to the light and see if they have any weak spots. Always choose a pair through which the light cannot penetrate.

When cooking fish in the oven, line the baking tin with grease-proof paper that has been well buttered; place the fish on the paper. It is not only easy to remove the fish when cooked, but the tin or dish, is left comparatively clean and will not need scraping when it is washed.

Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Good Offensive and Defensive Play

It is a pleasure to witness the struggle between perfect offensive and defensive play. The hand below afforded a spectacle of splendid strategy by both sides.

Z and A passed. Y made the opening bid of 2-Spades, asking partner's response upon minimum of two probable tricks. B passed. Having 2½ probable tricks support, Z raised to 3-Spades. To oblige another response from his partner, Y shifted into 4-Clubs, which Z shifted back to 4-Spades. B was too wise to locate his probable ability to defeat the contract, by doubling, so he passed.

B calculated that he might win one spade trick and one diamond trick, in any event; unless Z trumped two club leads of the declaring hand, probably B could win two club tricks, thus defeating the contract. To cut down dummy's ability to trump clubs, B's opening lead was his Ace of Spades, followed by another card of the same suit. To be in dummy on the second trump lead, Y ducked his 9 upon the opening lead, thus being able to win the second spade trick with Z's 8.

Dummy led the 9 of clubs; B won with Q. The only safe appearing return lead was B's fourth best heart, causing Y's singleton Ace to fall. Of course the declarer could not afford to lead a trump merely for the sake of putting dummy in the lead. Aside from that, dummy's last trump was needed to ruff a losing club held by the declarer. Y led his top club. Then he led his J of clubs. It was as clear as day that B's only excuse for making an opening lead of trumps was to enable B to win two club tricks. That meant that B held the missing K of clubs. Y intended to let the J run in case B did not cover, and to ruff in case B did cover—and B knew just what Y intended doing. B saw an excellent chance to defeat the contract in case he covered, so as to remove dummy's last trump, provided A still held a trump. B put up his K of clubs, and dummy's last trump ruffed the trick. Of course, dummy's K of hearts was led next, so that Y might discard his lowest diamond.

The obvious return lead was a low diamond from dummy, so as to take the finesse in the declaring hand. That is what B counted upon to defeat the contract. In case B could win a diamond trick with his K, while A still held a trump, A would ruff a lead to B's last club, and the declarer would be down one trick. It was an excellent scheme. The only trouble was that Y was not to be caught napping. He had lost only two tricks thus far; one to the Ace of spades, another to the Q of clubs; he still could afford to lose a diamond trick, but that could wait. Instead of leading back a diamond, with earmarks that B expected just that lead, or he never voluntarily would have covered the third round of clubs with his K, Y led a low heart from dummy, and ruffed. He led a single spade, and said: "I claim all tricks except the one going to be won by B's K of diamonds."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine, who is a widow, is about to be married again. Wouldn't it be more correct for her to announce her marriage after it has taken place? And have her announcement made by her mother, who is also a widow, the announcement to read:

Mrs. Carl Smith
Mrs. Jean Smith Carlisle,
to
Mr. John Brown.
Query

Birth Announcement

Dear Mr. Beeckman:

How does one announce the birth of a baby to friends living in distant cities? Telegrams are so expensive and notes take so long to write.

Is it still considered correct to attach a plain white card bearing the baby's name to a Mr. and Mrs. card, with a white ribbon? If so, what should the wording be on the cards?

A.

The form you outline is still the best form for the birth announcement. The Mr. and Mrs. card, larger than the usual visiting card, carries the engraved names: Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rollins Wood, with the street address in the lower right corner, if you wish. The name of the baby is engraved on the small card, and in the lower left corner, the date of the birth. Nowadays we often see Miss engraved before the name of the girl, even at this early age, and Master before the name of the boy.

If you don't wish to go to the expense of having these engraved, I suppose that they could be written, very carefully and with the same form and formality as they would be engraved. And the ribbon, whether baby is a girl or a boy, should be white.

UNSAFE! ...to wash handkerchiefs used during colds, grippe, flu

Don't endanger yourself or others. Use KLEENEX Disposable Tissues

EVERYONE knows what a repulsive job it is, to wash handkerchiefs used during a cold. But do you know it is dangerous as well?

Those handkerchiefs are literally teeming with germs. They are unfit to be touched. They certainly should not be mixed with other clothing.

Don't use handkerchiefs when you have a cold! Use Kleenex—the new, sanitary, disposable tissue that makes ordinary handkerchiefs seem uncivilized.

Kleenex is a disposable handkerchief. It is made of soft rayon-cellulose. Though gentler and more absorbent than any handkerchief, it costs much less. So little that you can destroy each tissue as soon as used. You avoid self-infection from handkerchiefs during a cold. At any drug, dry goods or department store.

Two Rascally New York Lawyers Operated Quickly and Cheaply—But Their Divorce Mill Is Now Wrecked!

Thousands of husbands and wives have not only been pried apart without the knowledge and consent of one or the other, but marriages have followed which have no legal standing and countless children have been born out of legal wedlock.

Only recently, two crooked New York lawyers were sentenced to prison for obtaining many fraudulent divorces for clients and are now in cells in Sing Sing. The cunning and connivance displayed by these men will astonish you. Find out how they did it—in the unusual article describing the divorce factory they operated. SUN-TELEGRAPH

DESIGNER SHOWS CHARMING ENSEMBLE FOR SPORTS WEAR

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, April 26.—There are some things that are indispensible, even vital to our health and spirits. And one of these things is sport. Even if we find it impossible to travel, to get out of town, or take vacations, we know that if we journey out to tennis court or golf course and keep up our game that we are keeping up to the right level. A summer in town with plenty of outdoor exercise at nearby places with sports facilities, will prove infinitely more healthful than ever so many vacations spent in just lazing round. And that brings us to the important matter of sport clothes. The designers have done well in this section of the mode this season, although one does not hear so much about these outfits as about late afternoons and cinema clothes. But just the same, a brisk trade has been reported in wearable, smart sports ensembles created definitely for sports wear and not for wear at luncheon at the Ritz, where gossip is the major sport. Lots of jersey and hand-knitted things are used and the general scheme is complete simplicity, a simplicity that manages to divorce itself from the too tailored or too severe, without admitting any inharmonious note.

* * *

MAGGY ROUFF has made some really good sports ensembles, things that should lure any woman to the golf course or for a good cross-country hike. Shown is a typical model done in shades of brown. The bloused, hand-knit jacket is of diagonal stripes of tan and brown on a beige ground. The lower half of the sleeves is of dark brown wool jersey. The skirt, of dark brown jersey, is divided. At front and back are narrow box-pleats. The belt is stitched leather in beige and dark brown and is attached to the jacket.

* * *

THE CHANEL FROCK is of light homespun. The crossed bands at the front of the bodice are loose and passing over each shoulder are crossed again in back and tossed back to the front in the manner of two scarfs. A similar treatment is noted on the skirt where the crossed bands terminate in a crushed belt buckled in back. The skirt, like most of the other daytime models in the latest Chanel collection, is quite long and circular in cut.

PIRATES AGAIN KEPT IDLE

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

BLUFF FIVE GETS GAME WITH YALE

THE REMARKABLE ADVANCE of Duquesne University in intercollegiate athletics has continued to the point that next winter will find the Dukes crashing the Big Three of the East in basketball. While no official announcement has yet been made, it is reported from a reliable source that arrangements have been completed whereby Chick Davies' passers will meet Yale in a court game at New Haven.

Chick Davies

Not only that, but efforts are also being made to get a game with Harvard in Cambridge, and there is said to be a fair prospect that the Dukes will be given a place on the Crimson schedule, too. The meeting with the Bulldogs at least is said to be assured. It will be the first appearance of the Bluff boys in that select company in any sport, and the recognition given to them by a member of the Big Three is a tribute to the excellent work done by Coach Davies in elevating Duke basketball to the highest collegiate standards. Duquesne has not been surpassed by any college of its size in the country in forward sport strides during recent years.

On balls hit near the foul line in the port meadow, a left-hand fielder there has got to make a half or three-quarters turn before he can throw to the infield. It is only by a step or so that runners are caught trying to stretch such hits, or others are nailed striving for an extra base, and the enemy runner gains that step while the left fielder is making his turn.

Chick Hafey or another right-hand thrower might have caught Earl Grace when the latter scored the winning run here last Thursday. Collins failed. That play convinced Gabby Street that he was playing the wrong system. Next day he moved Collins to right. It's a wonder he ever tried such a thing in the first place, just as it's a wonder why the Yankees use Babe Ruth in left sometimes or the Dodgers do the same regularly with Lefty O'Doul.

STREET IS CONVINCED that otherwise his team is O. K. He plans no further changes. "When Pepper Martin comes out of his early season slump, some pitchers are going to pay dearly," Gabby declares. "The same holds true for Jim Bottomley and Charley Gelbert. There will be no shake-up on the team. Other clubs have been strengthened and the Cards will simply have to fight harder. We know it's a job to win three flags in a row, but we'll try. A good bet for the pennant is St. Louis again. Those pitchers are not in their stride. A little hotter weather, and we'll be moving along fast and furiously."

Bill Terry

WHAT HAS CAUSED Bill Terry to loom so suddenly as a rival of Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Chuck Klein and the rest for home run honors? Though the greatest hitter in the National League, Terry has not, until now, gone in for the home run stuff. He made only nine last year.

The explanation is that Terry decided to follow a suggestion offered to him several times by other players that he try to pull the the ball into right field. And either through a change in their tactics or a lack of control, the opposing pitchers have been playing right into his hand by pitching inside to him.

"Possibly I could have done it before," Terry said, "but I had no reason to experiment. The pitchers kept the ball on the outside corner and I found it much easier to hit that kind of pitch into left field. I preferred a sure base hit in left to a possible home run in the other direction.

"This year, though, the pitchers have switched on me. They've been getting the ball inside. Poor control may be the explanation of that, but I've got an idea that the reputation I acquired as a left field hitter has inspired the change. So much was written about my one-field hitting that perhaps some of the pitchers got the idea I couldn't hit anywhere else."

IT DEVELOPS THAT Ben Eastman, in breaking the half-mile running record recently, probably would have lapped considerably more than three-tenths of a second off the old mark but for a mistake on his own part. He misjudged his pace in the first half of the route. Eastman says he had planned to do the first 440 yards in 52 seconds, but held down his speed a little too much in the early stages, with the result that it took him 53.3 seconds to cover that part of the course. That's one reason why track experts are confident he will lower the record further in his next attempt. Ben himself believes it will be easier for him to crack the mark next time because he has learned more about running the distance.

SPEAKING OF CALIFORNIA'S speed stars, it is contended that Bob Kiesel, who appeals to the average track follower as being a pretty fair sprinter after doing the hundred in 9.5 seconds, would be even better if he were to give his undivided attention to running. They want him to give up baseball!

Track men say if he lost some of his love for the diamond sport Kiesel would be a great sprinter. They hold he is more concerned about his baseball than about his sprinting and that his running suffers in consequence. In view of the fact that Bob may have a chance to make a living out of baseball, whereas he will never get very fat running for medals, perhaps he can't be blamed very much.

EARL MASTRO IS being given credit for exercising common sense in quitting the fight game before he entered into a foggy state that might have become permanent. Everything was clear to him when he walked out of the ring and gave up the sport after a nine-round pasting from Varias Milling.

Earl Mastro

Mastro had the good judgment to quit as soon as he found himself becoming the worse for ring wear. Friends of Al Banuet, the handball king, are using Mastro as an example in trying to convince him that he ought to give up his plan to become a professional fighter.

SO FAR THEY haven't succeeded in making Banuet change his mind by showing him what his finish may be, but the lesson was not lost on all aspiring pugilists. One to take it to heart and heed it was Rusty Gill, former California fullback. Rusty took part in two fights and didn't go so well. Friends told him he looked like a $20 fighter, pointed out what had happened to even such an experienced ringster as Mastro, and Gill got the idea right away. He has given it up for good. Imagine the disappointment of a gent who had made himself Gill's manager and signed Rusty to a seven-year contract. He put out a lot of money buying sweaters and bathrobes with Gill's name on them and had just fitted up a swell gymnasium in Oakland. "No use," said Gill. "I'm quitting while I've got my health—and my brains."

Heavy cannonading along all fronts is in prospect today in the district's scholastic baseball warfare, with full programs listed in the City League and the W. P. I. A. L.

Not only are the schoolboy baseballers busy, but there are four Interscholastic Golf Conference matches on tap.

In the baseball battles, the two defending champions, Schenley, in the City circuit, and McKeesport, in the W. P. I. A. L., run into stiff opposition. Schenley meets an old and tried rival in Peabody in Section I in the City loop. The Bellefielders must win to maintain their lead in the section. In a second Section I tussle, Westinghouse takes on Allegheny Vocational, a newcomer in the first division, on the North Side.

ALLEGHENY, CARRICK CLASH

In Section II, Allegheny meets Carrick and Langley plays Oliver. The Section II defending champion, South Hills, has an off day.

McKeesport meets Wilkinsburg in a W. P. I. A. L. feature. The Tubers will have their ace hurler, Bubrick, primed for the slab assignment. Bubrick turned in a one-hit shutout victory against Edgewood last week.

Section II of the W. P. I. A. L. finds Jim Baker's Beaver nine tackling Aliquippa. In Section III, Canonsburg plays at Cecil and Trinity engages Hickory at Hickory. Supporting the McKeesport-Edgewood feature in Section III, Elizabeth engages Edgewood and Rankin meets Turtle Creek.

The grade school nine are busy, too, with Brookline and Lee going to rags in Section I; O'Hara and Woolslair in Section II, Group II; Rogers and Sunnyside in Group IV, and Linden and Swisshelm in Group V.

ARNOLD TEAMS BUSY

Athletes at Arnold School inaugurate a busy week with the tennis, golf and baseball teams in action. The baseball team will open the card with a game at Arnold Field with Carnegie and on Friday afternoon will play the University School team. The school's golf representatives will play at Wilkinsburg this afternoon and on Friday will meet the links' representatives of Alderdice High School in interscholastic golf conference competition. The tennis team engages the Mt. Lebanon squad on the Mt. Lebanon courts Thursday.

In a golf conference match yesterday, in Section II, Kiski defeated McKeesport High School, 15 to 1, over the Kiski course. Jim Marks, Jr., son of Dean J. L. Marks, turned in a card of 75, the best individual effort of the day.

Her father was serving a sentence for a political crime and her mother was the daughter of the jail warden. She spent her youth in a convent of Ursulines, whence she emerged to marry Scarron, the French dramatist, at the age of 17. After the death of her husband she succeeded in being united to King Louis in a secret marriage ceremony. She wielded a strong influence at the French court, her attitude being marked by a proud dignity. According to her own memoires (Lettres de Mme. de Maintenon) she had herself bled regularly twice a week to be able to listen without blushing to the stories circulating in the gay circles of the French court.

TOMORROW: THE LONELIEST SKIPPER OF THEM ALL.

COLD WEATHER PREVENTS BUC, CUB ACTION

CHICAGO, April 26.—The cold wave reaching Chicago Sunday caused another baseball postponement at Wrigley Field today. The Pirates and Cubs, idle yesterday as a result of the wintry breezes, were given another day off when the home management decided to postpone the contest scheduled for this afternoon. The final scrap of what was supposed to have been a four-game series will be played tomorrow.

Manager Gibson will lead his Freebooters back to Pittsburgh tomorrow night. The Bucs will entertain Dan Howley's rejuvenated Reds at Forbes Field in the last three days of the week. The Pirates feel they have an account to settle with these unkind Reds. After the Buccos had held the world champion Cardinals to a draw in four battles in St. Louis they were mistreated by Dashing Dan's merry sluggers. The Rhinelanders took two out of three contests from Pittsburgh, and they made the Pittsburghers like it by rubbing in a couple of shutout defeats. Needless to say the Buccos will try to change the picture this week.

CUBS, PIRATES UNLUCKY

The long major league races have been on only two weeks, yet the casualty lists on some clubs are somewhat astounding. Consider the Cubs and the Pirates. Picked as a flag contender largely on account of the brilliance of Shortstop Woody English and Outfielder Kiki Cuyler, the Bruins must now carry on indefinitely without these two stars, who are out of action with rather serious injuries—serious so far as the club's outlook is concerned.

And then ponder on the Pirates. George Gibson seems to be at the head of one of the "fightingest" clubs in either league, but he is running afoul of hard luck. In the first place, Heinie Meine, star of the Pittsburgh slab staff, went on a holdout bender that may result in his retirement from the game. Meine's present status is that of an ineligible player and there is nothing to indicate that he eventually will join the fold.

KREMER ON SHELF

Remy Kremer, one of the circuit's most effective performers on the mound over a long stretch of seasons, is not even with the club on its present jaunt. Remy was in excellent physical condition in the early part of the spring training period, but he became ill with influenza later and then developed teeth trouble. Recently he had six of his molars yanked and at present he is unable to pitch. Gibby is hoping the stellar veteran will be able to take his turn on the mound soon.

But that isn't all. Gibby and the Pirates were looking forward to big feats from Southpaw Charley Wood, but the young left-hander wound up the California training season in a Los Angeles hospital. Wood's appendix was removed, which probably means that he will do little high-grade pitching before Memorial Day.

Thus it will be seen that the two clubs mentioned are in a bad way on account of illness and injuries. But eventualities of this nature provide opportunities for the youngsters, and who knows but what the Cubs or Pirates may spring some rookies who will ride to fame while filling in as understudies?

CUYLER LOST UNTIL JUNE

Hazen Cuyler's fractured foot will keep him out of action until the middle of June, it was reported today. Cuyler injured himself in running the bases in Sunday's game.

Coach Otis Crandall, of the Pirates, is recuperating from a wrenched side sustained while he pitched to the Bucco hitters Sunday.

MAT PRELIMS BOOKED

The card has been completed with the exception of an opponent for Kola Kwariani in the opening bout for the wrestling show to be held at Motor Square Garden Wednesday night of next week. It was originally announced in error that the matches would be staged on Tuesday, but a boxing show is scheduled then, setting back the mat show one night.

Gino Garibaldi, the young Italian star, and Frank Speers, of Georgia Tech, will meet in the main bout, one fall to a finish. Both are well known to the local fans, especially Speers, who has been on every card here this season. He opposed Jim Londos, the champion, in the most recent offering.

Mike Romano and John Maxos, who wrestled Strangler Lewis, former champion, in an earlier show, will appear in the semi-final. George Kotsonaros grapples Steve Znoski and Howard Cantonwine is in with Alex Aberg in the preliminaries aside from the Kwariani match. All of the preliminaries will be limited to 30 minutes.

Between Rounds

Charley Baxter is out as an opponent of Battling Gizzy at the Kapphan Arena where Gizzy is obligated to fulfill a contract before hooking Tony Cardonen, the lightweight champion in the opening show of the Meyers Bowl, May 23. The Boxing Commission yesterday informed Promoter Kapphan that the only opponent Gizzy must fight under the conditions is Jackie Cohen of New York, with whom he was matched recently and on whom he pulled out. Saturday night of next week was set as the date, and if the club can't close the match for that time, Gizzy will be free of the contract.

Lou Terry, of St. Louis, a good light-weight, is in town with his manager, Bob Riley, and two stablemates. Terry is especially keen about fighting Gizzy, but, with the latter set for the Canzoneri battle, he'll have to take someone else.

George (Young) Bordell, of New Kensington, is the latest addition to the stable of Abie Wits. He is a lightweight.

George Julius will box Johnny Burke, Eddie Zivic will oppose Johnny Duron, Eddie Katkish will tangle with L. Buriganelli and Stanley Blake will take on George Lupinacci in bouts on the amateur card at the Pittsburgh Lyceum, Thursday night.

Paul Monar, of Homestead, is ready again to turn professional. He decided to do so some months ago, but changed his mind at that time.

Al Gunsert's bad ear has passed the doctor's test and he will represent Pittsburgh in the lightweight class in the National A. A. U. senior championships in Madison Square Garden, New York, May 4, 5, 6.

BAT REMAINS UNDER BAN

CHICAGO, April 26.—(AP.)—The proposed 10-round return bout between Bat Battalino and Billy Petrolle at the Chicago Stadium, May 20, was up in the air today as a result of the failure of the Cincinnati Boxing Commission to reinstate Battalino.

Until the ban is lifted, the former world featherweight champion will be unable to appear in the states under control of the National Boxing Association. Battalino was suspended indefinitely and fined $5,000 for an unsatisfactory showing in his championship match with Freddie Miller at Cincinnati last winter.

Crawford Arrange For Big Opening

Elaborate plans have been completed for the opening of the Crawford Stars' new diamond, Greenlee Field, Friday evening. Attorney Robert L. Vann will toss out the first ball and city officials and big league players have been invited to attend. The New York Black Yankees will provide the opposition.

BOXING NOTES

Ross Fields boxes Anton Korcis, of Hungary, in the main bout of a card of eight-rounders in Cleveland Friday night. Lou Fallon boxes Lou Severo, Patsy Severo meets Jimmy Vaughn, Eddie Mojack opposes Joe Echland and Marshall Comette is in with Don Gonzales.

Frank Klaus, former middleweight champion of the world, has three boxers on the Moose Temple card tomorrow night. Jimmy Belmont in the main bout against Dave Grove, Billy Flanagan in the semi-final against Anson Green and Carl Gross against Tom Hanson. In the other bout, Sammy Asto boxes Bobby Rowe.

Tommy Loughran's kid brother, Charles, boxes Phil Parker in a preliminary at the Cambria Club in Philadelphia tomorrow night. It was at the Cambria arena that Tommy did much of his early fighting.

Back again on the job as matchmaker for the Kaphhan Arena, Bill Dummer is trying to put together his card of six-rounders for next Saturday night. He has a flock of boxers available, but is encountering difficulty in pairing them.

HEAVY GOLF SCHEDULE CARDED FOR TODAY

SCHOOL DUELS, CLUB AFFAIRS ON PROGRAM

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

One might think that the golf season was in full swing to take a peek at today's schedule.

The Duquesne University team which met defeat at the hands of Pitt in its opening match on Saturday plays Kiski Interscholastic Golf Conference array on the latter's course.

The Butler Club and Restaurant Men's Golf Association holds forth in its initial competition at the Stanton Heights Golf Club.

Four matches are slated in the Inter-Scholastic Golf Conference. In Section 1, Avonia School plays Wilkinsburg and Edgewood and Sewickley meets Aldentee at Schenley. Section 2 contests find Oliver meeting Carrick at South Hills and Peabody playing against Bellevue at Shannopin.

A golf tourney and dinner is to be followed tonight by the annual meeting of the Pittsburgh Country Club. Officers are to be elected for the ensuing year. H. S. Nicholson is the reigning president.

The Allegheny County South Park course will be opened officially with proper ceremonies at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Director Paul R. Rea announced today. Commissioner Mansfield will strike the first ball. The North Park layout will not be thrown open until Friday morning at which similar ceremonies are scheduled. A. McBride at South Park and Jim MacFarland at North Park again will be back on the job as professionals.

Chilly Sauce

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

"I graduated under the best manager in baseball and took a post-graduate course under another manager who was right close to this class. Both of these leaders knew the value of fighting spirit and I think I have a fair appreciation of what it means."

The speaker was George Gibson, pilot of the Pirates and his audience was composed of Bill Benswanger, president of the Pirates and a few others. Gibby was touching on the subject of fighting spirit on a ball club and doubtless he knows whereof he speaks.

Clarke and McGraw did not become aggressive pilots overnight. They were in the rank and file of the game when the enemy was an enemy and the old timers will tell you that these two athletes had more than one collision on the field. Gibson was a catcher when Clarke was in his heyday as a player and manager and George served as assistant to McGraw after he left the Pittsburgh club.

Paul Waner is an athlete who appears to be chock full of the recipe prescribed by the Lunch. Paul is playing a stellar rightfield in right field and his bat is breaking those ducks when he clouts the ball. Adam (Comiskey) also seems to be imbued with a new confidence. Lindsey has made a couple of scathing hits at Forbes Field with the bases jammed and two out. Incidents of this nature are significant.

DUKES' BOXING CARD, CLINIC PLANS SET

By JESS CARVER

Coach Ben Dougherty of the Duquesne University boxing team gave a reflective rub or two to his classic chin as he gazed upon the boxing schedule completed and released today by Graduate Manager John Holohan. Six matches have been carded all with Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Conference teams and the Duke tangmen entered in the conference's second annual tournament, which will be staged at Morgantown.

The Dukes are to meet Washington & Jefferson at Washington, Pa., on February 26, Carnegie Tech, Temple, Pitt, Bucknell and West Virginia in the order named, opening their campaign with the gloves on January 20 and sticking at it until the completion of the tourney March 19. The schedule and dates follow.

Athletic Director and Football Coach Elmer Layden has announced complete plans for the Dukes' football clinic booked for May 6. The guests will be greeted and registered in the university gymnasium between 1 and 2:30 o'clock. At 2:30 there will be an explanation of the rules and at 3:30 the Red and Blue gridders will put on a typical Notre Dame-Rockne-Layden practice session. A regulation game between picked squads will get under way at 4:30, with Dex Very, Warren McMillan, Cal Bolster and Dan Daugherty serving as officials.

At 6:30 a dinner will be served in the Keystone A. C. grill. There will be no fee for attendance at the clinic, a nominal charge of $1 being tacked on the boys for the dinner.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says!

NEW YORK, April 26.—If a pair of honeymooners were looking for a quiet, lonely spot, they couldn't pick out a better place than the St. Louis ball grounds any afternoon the Browns were scheduled to play. The St. Louis folks are paying just as much attention to the team as to the Eighteenth Amendment. In fact, they wouldn't care if the Browns were repealed.

Nick Altrock

St. Loo turned out a mammoth horde of 1,500 for the American League's opening day game, and after that attendance dropped off to normal, which consists of about 600 a day—half of them ushers, peanut vendors and bat boys.

BRAVES LOSE, SHARE LEAD WITH CUBS

Associated Press

Trailing the Phillies by one run in the last of the twelfth yesterday, the Braves got men on first and second with only one out. The next batter, Wes Schulmerich, belted a line single to right. It looked like the tying wallop, at least.

But Wally Berger, tearing down to second, was hit by the ball and was out automatically under an old major league rule. Worthington was held at second. There went the rally and with it the ball game, 4 to 3.

The defeat, their first in seven starts, dropped the Braves into a tie for first with the idle Chicago Cubs, each with eight victories and three losses.

In the only other National League tilt that survived a day of widespread cold and rain, the St. Louis Cardinals received tight pitching from Bill Hallahan in the pinches to make it two straight from Cincinnati, 4 to 2.

The lone American League contest saw the Cleveland Indians take another from St. Louis, 10 to 5. Clint Brown held the Browns to six hits, one a homer by Rick Ferrell.

Tee to Green

Shannopin's popular publication, Chief Tech, announces a reduced tariff for all that course. It has been reduced to 50 cents per touch.

J. A. Hibach, Shannopin's president, remarks: "The shrinkage in revenues following the reduction of membership dues, green fees, etc., coupled with a somewhat larger loss in membership than the previous year, presents a problem which curtailment of expense alone does not solve. I believe that as in the past, Shannopin's membership will be fully equal to any problem confronting the club and I feel that it is wise to remind the membership that each individual has a responsibility along the lines of making an effort to help protect the equity of the club."

A 5-foot, 6-inch, 150-pound golfer, not to put rudely, turns representative of other golfing talents, is an effective proof the truism that size of the bag does not correspond to the quality of the caddy.

Wildwood's turf is ideal for this time the season, Nelson Zimmerman anticipates a lot of play.

Ted Luther at Valley Heights has remodeled his pro shop and has made several other important changes there. He has opened a school for caddies, among other things.

The Pittsburgh Field Club will not begin its Saturday sweepstakes tourneys until the turf is ready for "respectable" rules, according to Dave McKay, its professional. The course is in good condition, however. It is expected the new eighteenth hole will be in play all season.

Theos Manos Loses Match by Default

NORTH SIDERS TO LIFT LID TODAY

DETROIT TEAM TO TEST LOCAL SANDLOTTERS

By TOM BIRKS

Followers of Art Rooney's North Siders will have an opportunity to see what possibilities their favorites have in the coming City League chase by looking on this evening at the Salt Works, as the club swings into action against the Detroit team of the East-West Negro League. Cum Posey, former manager of the Homestead Grays, is in charge of the Detroiters. An interesting battle is expected.

Under the leadership of Manager Mart Kenny, the North Siders are going to expand and book a heavy independent schedule.

Thursday, the newly formed North Side Civic team will be met at the Salt Works, and on May 5 the Pittsburgh Collegians, back on the diamond under the old management, will be played.

BOAST STAR LINEUP

Art Rooney and Manager Penny have mustered what appears to be the nucleus of a good candlot club. The Blue and Gold of Pitt will predominate with Jimmy Rooney, Eddie Baker, Muggsy Skladaney and possibly Mike Sebastain on hand. Harp Vaughan, one of the best utility players in sandlot baseball, Johnny Mitchell, Bill Yost, Reddick, Mert Caye Woods Hartman and Red Whitmore, the latter the ace of the pitching staff, have been signed.

The Wilkinsburg Murs, of the Greater Pittsburgh League, will hold practice sessions each evening this week at the Hunter street grounds. Lohr, former Verona star, and Phil McConnell, former Edgewood first sacker, have joined the club.

Teams wishing to meet the Holy City aggregation should write Manager Monty Courage, 1209 Sherman street, Wilkinsburg, or call Penhurst 1729.

ACES MEET WHEELING

Manager Jack Fertig will take his Homestead Aces to Wheeling next Sunday to help the Wheeling Independents open the season. The Aces looked great in the workout at Locust Grove Sunday. There is a chance that Jack Miller will be primed to pitch the West Virginia opener.

The City League meeting Thursday evening promises to provide some fireworks as the managers attempt to elect a president to succeed Harry Yerz, recently resigned, and to straighten out the muddle existing between the league and the Pittsburgh Umpires' Association.

The league is inclined to cut the fees of the arbiters this season, while the umps are just as determined that they will be paid as they were last year.

The Grays have completed their schedule of exhibition games to be played before entering competition in the East-West Negro League, which opens its season on May 7. The Grays have scheduled the following games:

April 27, Hazelton N. Y.-Pa. League club at Hazelton, Pa.; April 28, Claybourn Collegians at North Braddock; April 29, York N. Y.-Pa. League club at York, Pa.; April 30, Cleveland East-West League club at Alliance, O.; May 1, Erie High Central League, at Erie, Pa.; May 2, at Youngstown, O.; May 3, North Side Civic at Salt Works grounds; May 4, Scottdale Independents at Scottdale; May 5, Fairmont Middle Atlantic League club at Fairmont, W. Va.; May 6, at Monessen, Pa.

Boxer Only Three Months, He Seeks National Title

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

Representing the Pittsburgh district in the National A. A. U. senior boxing championships in New York's Madison Square Garden next week will be an 18-year-old Croatian heavyweight, who has been boxing only three months. If that isn't progress, then Mr. Webster has the wrong definition in his dictionary. The youngster is Mike (Buck) Makarun, who lives on his father's farm six miles out of Uniontown and walks in to the Sands A. C. gymnasium in Uniontown every day to train.

BUCK MAKARUN

One day last January, Buck ambled into the gym, a typical big farmer boy. He was intrigued by what he saw going on there and asked to be permitted to put on a set of boxing gloves and try his luck. Standing 6 feet 2 inches in his socks, and scaling 190 pounds, he immediately caught the eye of Al Sandorf, the trainer, after whom the gymnasium is named.

Buck's first bout was with Curley Klaas, of the North Side, in the A. M. A. junior championships at the Keystone A. C., here, and he lost by a knockout. Undaunted, he carried on and won the Middle States tournament the latter part of February. Recently he returned to the Keystone Club to win the A. M. A. senior title and the right to compete for the National crown and an Olympic Games berth.

The sum total of Makarun's ring experience at this stage is participation in 11 bouts, of which he has lost two. He is rated a rare prospect and will bear close watching. Naturally, he plans to turn professional some day and go after the big money that lies ahead for the heavyweights.

COAST SCHOOLS ANNEX HEARST SHOOT TITLES

By LIEUT. COL. JESS KRUEGER
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, April 26.—Announcement is made by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, of the Sixth Corps Area, of the final standings in the 1931-1932 William Randolph Hearst rifle competition among Reserve Officers Training Corps units in high schools, military academies, universities and colleges throughout the country.

More than 500 teams participated in this year's matches. The competition was under the supervision of the Regular Army and Gen. Parker served as referee.

COAST SCHOOLS SCORE

For the first time in the 11 years' history of the shoot, the West Coast captured two national championships. The first team of the University of Washington, at Seattle, won first place among the senior schools with a score of 960 points out of a possible 1,000. Cadet Don Cook, of this school, won the gold watch for individual supremacy among the marksmen of the senior group with a score of 194 points out of a possible 200.

Another school, Alameda High School, of Alameda, Cal., came in for considerable honors when Lawrence Strong, a member of the rifle team, won the individual championship among the juniors with a remarkable score of 199 points out of a possible 200.

GREENBRIER VICTOR

Some consolation is to be had for the East with the victory of Greenbrier Military School, of Lewisburg, W. Va., in the military school classification of the matches. The team score was 931 points.

Though not a member of the championship team, Maver Osborn, of the same institution, won the individual championship among the military academy group with a score of 198 points.

Announcement will be made within the next day or two of the sectional champions in this competition.

BUCS PRAISED BY PITT PROF

According to Dr. Maxwell Ferguson, professor of economics at the University of Pittsburgh, and the university's most ardent baseball fan, the Pirates have a mighty good chance of copping the pennant this year.

Dr. Ferguson, a former Harvard baseball star, who once tried out with the New York Giants, bases his belief on the Bucs' new spirit. He said:

"The Pirates have a fine baseball club this year. I saw the opening game, and I noticed the team has a new spirit that it didn't have before. The pitching end may be a trifle weak, but I still think the club's new zip will put it out in front for the pennant."

Every time the doctor can get away from his college work, he goes over to Forbes Field to do his share of rooting. He thinks Herb Pennock, of the New York Yankees, is the classiest pitcher in the game and calls Larry French "a real worker."

"I like baseball best because of the close fellowship that goes with it. The players do a lot of talking back and forth, which helps to put spirit into the game. You don't find that same personal contact in other sports. I also like to see a hard hit and a good catch."

OLD DOMINION FIELD LED BY TOLEDO ACE

HOT SPRINGS, Va., April 26.—(AP.)—R. A. Stranahan, of Toledo, O., set a fast pace for a field of youngsters who started the qualifying round of the Old Dominion golf championship over the Cascades course yesterday. His 72 was the low card for the day and was within one stroke of the course record.

Billy Howell, the defending champion, played a somewhat spotty round and was frequently in trouble, and carded a 78 after taking a seven on the eighteenth hole.

W. Va. Nine Loses To Maryland, 4 to 3

COLLEGE PARK, Md., April 26.—(AP.)—Taking advantage of wobbly fielding by West Virginia University, Maryland squeezed through to a 4 to 3 victory over the Mountaineers here yesterday for their third straight win.

The Old Liners pushed across the winning tally in the seventh. Cronin singled, stole second, went to third on a fielder's choice and scored when Staub's throw to the plate on Gorman's grounder was late.

Aston Villa Holds Soccer Race Lead

LONDON, April 26.—(AP.)—Arsenal and Aston Villa played to a 1-1 tie at Birmingham yesterday in a soccer match of the English League, first division.

Arsenal was defeated by Newcastle United for the English Football Association cup Saturday.

Schmeling Cheered In Oshkosh Bout

OSHKOSH, Wis., April 26.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling, heavyweight titleholder, was cheered roundly by fight fans jamming the Recreation Gymnasium here last night to watch him in three rounds of exhibition fighting.

Forbes

Questions to Ask Big Short Stock Sellers.

By B. C. FORBES

IF THE SENATORIAL probers are convinced that it would accomplish a useful purpose to spread before the country a real picture of stock market onslaughts, here are a few pointers.

Mr. Forbes

Don't bother with the status on April 8. Ample warning had been given so that big bears could get from under.

Have President Whitney supply complete data as of May 25 of last year, when the short interest was 5,589,700 shares. Unquestionably names which disappeared by April 8 would be revealed—some extremely interesting names.

Have President Whitney or some other stock exchange official spread on the record just how much short-selling was done in certain stocks on certain days, and describe how much quotations declined under the terrific bear selling.

Admittedly, "bear-raiding" has been rigidly controlled of late, under the stringent rules recently prescribed by the Stock Exchange governors. But uncover details of what happened in outstandingly spectacular instances before the present restrictions went into force.

WHEN MATTHEW C. BRUSH is on the stand, he should be quizzed as to whether his operations were for his own personal account or for his company.

President Whitney, once the participation of floor specialists in pools formed to manipulate their own stocks has been officially admitted, should be asked what the Stock Exchange proposes to do about it. He should be asked whether the exchange authorities have or have not objections to a specialist joining a pool in his own stocks through the subterfuge of using his wife's name.

If the committee wants to dig deeper, it might prove salutary to summon the chief executives and the most influential directors of various large corporations that put out reams of new stock during the boom, and ask these gentlemen for details on how much of their own company's stock they owned during the boom, how much they sold since, when they sold it, the prices they realized, the present quotations for the same stock and, most important of all, how much of their own company's stocks they now own. Suspicion has arisen that many insiders dumped their stocks on the public at higher prices.

SUSPICION HAS also arisen that many powerful financiers on corporation directorates and many corporation executives have now mighty little stock in their own companies.

Such gentlemen should be asked whether they regard it as entirely honorable to take advantage of inside information in order to line their own pockets at the expense of the ignorance of the outsiders.

WORLD TRADE FIGURES OFF

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—A survey by the National Industrial Conference Board discloses that the total monetary value of foreign trade of the 22 leading countries of the world declined from $40,685,000,000 in 1930 to $29,614,000,000 in 1931.

The report shows that the value of exports and imports of the countries considered was $18,705,000,000 lower than in 1929 in which year their foreign trade totaled $49,319,000,000. The value of commodity exports dropped from $19,042,000,000 in 1930 to $13,843,000,000 in 1931, and commodity imports from $21,643,000,000 to $15,771,000,000.

The Conference Board finds some encouragement in the fact that the various debtor countries have severely restricted their imports, and that the gradual readjustment of balances may be expected to facilitate the movement of international funds and assist in the recovery of prices by relieving the pressure on the balances of the debtors.

Trading Resumed In Montreal Light

NEW YORK, April 26.—The New York Curb Exchange has resumed trading in common stock of Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated common stock. This is the first time the stock has been traded in here since it was suspended at Canadian request, following England's suspension of the gold standard and the pegging restrictions placed on Montreal issues.

Anderson Attacks Glass Plan to Separate Banks From Security Business

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE FORCING of banks out of the investment securities business as is proposed in the revised Glass Banking Bill would be a serious mistake, Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson, Jr., economist for the Chase National Bank, declares in an attack against the measure in his organization's economic bulletin.

He declares that the business of underwriting securities was primarily in the hands of a few great private bankers before the chartered banks began to develop security affiliates. Complaints of a money trust and of a capital market closed to all who would not deal with these private bankers were frequently made at that time, Dr. Anderson states, that these charges were exaggerated, but that they contained an element of truth. In his opinion the security affiliates of the great banks have introduced a needed competitive element.

He further insists that the separately capitalized security affiliates risk their own funds but not the banks' funds in their underwriting operations so that they do not add to the dangers of bank depositors.

* * *

Regulation of Security Affiliates Desirable

DR. ANDERSON believes that the regulation of security affiliates by the authorities who now control the operations of state and national banks is desirable and he thinks that they have an important and useful place in our financial system. He says:

"To throw the issue of securities back into the hands of private bankers little subject to public authority, as proposed in the Glass Bill, could hardly improve the picture."

His study of the Glass Bill also takes issue with the proposal that banks be forbidden to buy for their investment account more than 10 per cent of the total amount of any issue of bonds outstanding.

* * *

Might Cripple Activities In Giving Business Aid

AS A GENERAL rule of investment policy, a bank would not ordinarily buy more than 10 per cent of any one issue, Dr. Anderson declares, but at the same time points to the fact that circumstances could easily arise where a bank might be justified in buying the whole of a particular issue. In commenting on this angle he says:

"A bank might have a loan to a business corporation made in anticipation of the placing of a bond issue and the state of the bond market might preclude a public issue. The bank might very well improve its position by accepting an issue of bonds from the borrower in place of the slow loan. It is a question of judgment.

"The next few years will see, as is always true after crises, many reorganizations in which banks, and creditors' committees of several banks, will be obliged to accept what payment they can get, from customers who are hard pressed and unable to meet maturing loans. The bank policy is to keep such debtors going concerns if the management is good, rather than force them into bankruptcy, and it is often wise to put the debt into funded form rather than to have floating debt imperil the life of the business at every maturity.

"This new section will impair the bond market a great deal, lessen the salability of bonds, and force the withdrawal from the bond market of very important and useful trading activities of great well-informed banks."

Chicago Commerce Group Hits Tariff

CHICAGO, April 26.—(AP.)—The Chicago Association of Commerce regards the existing high tariff as a serious obstacle in the way of greater international trade and dispatched messages to Washington last night asking a more liberal application of the principles of protectionism.

The business group, retreating somewhat from its traditional advocacy of the high tariff, held the present tariff policy responsible for loss of foreign markets and proposed legislation that would facilitate reciprocal concessions on tariff rates with other nations.

Canadian Market Curbs Short Selling

TORONTO, Ontario, April 26.—(AP.)—Directors of the Toronto Standard Stock and Mining Exchange have authorized a regulation designed to curb short selling operations on the floor. They ruled no short sales could be made at a price lower than the transaction immediately preceding for a board lot of the stock in question.

The regulation will prohibit short sellers from making successive sales of stock at declining prices unless a board lot sale by an outright owner has been made between sales for short account.

Japan Makes Record Silk Deal With U. S.

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—The silk market in New York turned higher yesterday when word reached it of the sale by the Japanese government of 108,000 bales of raw silk to American interests for $16,200,000, the largest silk transaction in the history of Japan.

Paolino Gerli, head of E. Gerli & Co., of New York, which firm represents the American group buying the Japanese silk, said that the bulk of the new purchase would be shipped to the United States.

CANADA TOURIST TRADE FALLS

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(INS.)—Tourist trade to Canada has not been affected by the depression to the extent that has ordinary trade and industry, the Commerce Department has revealed.

Contrasted to the 30 to 60 per cent reduction in many lines of business, American motorists spent but 7 per cent less in Canada in 1931 than they ear before and only 12.7 per cent less than in the peak year of 1929.

American motorists spent $188,000,000 in Canada last year. The total number of automobiles "imported into Canada for tourist purposes" was 4,909,988 as compared with the record total of 5,409,458 in 1930. While more American tourists went to Canada last year their expenditures were less.

MARKET WORKS UNCERTAINLY HIGHER

Recessions of Fractions To Point Appear After Stocks Gain 1 to Over 2

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—The stock market worked uncertainly higher during the earlier hours of trading today, but went into the afternoon with a softening tendency.

Trading remained extremely sluggish. The list apparently was helped a little by a sharp increase shown in the weekly report of freight car loadings, and the weekly condition statement of reporting member banks, showing a gain of $61,000,000 in loans and investments. But buying power was scarcely impressive.

Recessions of from fractions to a point appeared after a number of shares had moved up 1 to more than 2 points, including United States Steel, American Telephone, American Water Works, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Woolworth, Lambert, Allied Chemical, Standard of New Jersey, National Biscuit, American Can, Auburn and others. Norfolk and Western had one of its wide movements, advancing 7 points. Alaska Juneau, which has been rather soft since the pool in this issue has been brought out in the Washington investigation, declined about 1½ points.

The weekly report of the revenue freight movement, appearing on Tuesday rather than Wednesday starting today, showed an increase over the previous week of 21,923 cars making the 566,729, which was 192,765 under the like week of 1931.

The subsidence of pressure against Standard Oil of New Jersey was accompanied by a report in brokerage quarters that a large bid had been placed for the issue at 21, or just under the market. This could not be confirmed, but recalled the report in the autumn of 1929 that Rockefeller interests had placed a bid for 1,000,000 shares, which checked the decline at that time.

The entire group of member banks in 101 leading cities showed further shrinkage of loans on securities, amounting to $17,000,000, but "all other" loans, including commercial loans, increased $16,000,000, which, while moderate, was a welcome change after the prolonged shrinkage of loans for commercial purposes.

The U. S. Steel directors' meeting after the close was a factor tending to make for hesitancy in the market, although Wall Street was inclined to believe that omission of the 50-cent quarterly dividend, and report of a deficit for the first quarter, had been so widely expected as to have been largely discounted.

LOSS REPORTED BY J. & L.

Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation reports for the quarter ended March 31, 1932, net loss after depreciation, depletion and interest of $2,399,089. This compares with net loss of $1,549,948 in the fourth quarter of 1931 and with a net loss of $190,982 in the first quarter of 1931.

South Penn Raises Corning Crude Oil

South Penn Oil Company has advanced the posted price of Corning grade crude oil 10 cents per barrel in Buckeye Pipe Line Company lines to $1.05.

ASHLAND, Ky., April 26.—Ashland Refining Company has made an advance of 5 cents a barrel in Somerset crude oil to 85 cents. With the 15 cent premium generally paid in Eastern Kentucky fields, this gives producers $1 a barrel for their oil. The price affects about 5,000 wells formerly served by Cumberland Pipe Line Company.

Curb Membership Sells for $21,000

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a New York Curb Exchange seat at $21,000, a decrease of $1,000 from the previous sale, and a record low value since 1927. A Curb seat sold at a record high of $254,000 in 1929.

Youngstown Mills Speeding Output

REVERSE STOCK SPLITS COME TOO LATE

Capital Reductions Held More Useful If It Had Occurred in Boom Times

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 26.—The new fashion of reverse split-ups by holding companies, such as Niagara and Hudson, Electric Bond and Share, and by industrials, such as Studebaker, is largely a routine matter.

It would have been vastly more socially useful for alert and conscientious directors to have reduced financial clothing to the inner realities while the stock market boom was on. Such a public-spirited move would have constituted a useful warning against inflationary watering of stock values at the stock exchange. For a time, the unwise might have proceeded in the face of such a danger signal, but at least the directors would now have easier consciences.

Mr. Rukeyser

HELPED TURN

The refusal a few weeks before the panic of the Massachusetts Public Utilities Commission to let a local utility split its stock played an important part in the conversion of the American public to the idea that stocks were overpriced.

Though there may be instances where split-ups are warranted, usually the motive is contrary to the public interest. In one case, a public utility holding company split its stock periodically lest the legislators in state where subsidiaries operated would think they were profiteering. Another incentive for split-ups was to anesthetize the outside public, and make it oblivious to the restraining effect on buying of high prices.

CHECK IMPAIRED

By dividing outstanding stocks into four shares for one, for example, the unit of trading became lower in price, and the adverse effect on turnover of a high price, which became a sales resistance point, was offset. Thus, except to the analytical, the normal check to inflation which high prices provide was impaired.

This comment is made with no thought of discouraging those who are now considering bringing capitalization in line with true asset and earning power position. With the stock market not only fully allowing for the squeezing out of water, but in not a few instances even undervaluing actual worth, this is a convenient occasion for eliminating abuses of overcapitalization. However, those who act after the event of deflation, instead of before, are merely conforming to the logic of events, rather than giving constructive leadership to their stockholders.

Engineering Elects Brooks Director

At the annual meeting today of United Engineering and Foundry Company, F. F. Brooks was elected a director to fill a vacancy. Other directors were re-elected.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, April 26.—A slightly better tone appeared in the bond market today with most of the United States government issues advancing moderately and a number of transportation liens indicating quiet but steady accumulation.

French government 7s and 7½s continued to ease, and other foreign obligations were mixed. Kreuger & Toll 5s again recorded gains. Irish Free State 5s jumped nearly 2 points.

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, compiled in sales column, United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars:

Lola's Mother Promises to Co-Operate With Colt To Solve Mystery

CHAPTER XVII

At this stage of the inquiry it did look to me as if the mystery were unsolvable. Here was a body drenched to the skin. Rigor mortis had set in—Christine had been dead for hours; she had been dead while Lola was still alive.

What could have happened?

There was not time, even to theorize, so busy were we all with the simple and ghastly routine. But at last the police ritual of homicide was complete.

Merkle, the camera man, and Williams, the fingerprint expert, having finished their ministrations over the second body that evening, hastened off to headquarters for instant development of their prints and plates. The assistant medical examiner had left with Colt, Dougherty, Flynn and myself.

"As a matter of fact, Mr. Colt, it would look like heart trouble—shows all the symptoms, just like the other one did—except for one thing."

"What's that?" barked Dougherty.

The medical examiner's eyes were fixed in a deeply significant stare on Thatcher Colt.

"I'd like to show you something," he said, in a nasal and sepulchrally meaningful voice. Without a word we followed Dr. Multooler to the bedside where lay the body of Christine. Lifting the head in the palm of one hand, Dr. Multooler pointed with the fingers of the other to the nape of the neck.

"See those marks?"

MONSTROUS MARKS

We did see them. They were unmistakable on the dead young flesh—welts that scarred the white skin, long fang-like streaks and blue bruised depressions. I confess I shivered at the sight of these marks on the neck and throat and under the chin of Christine. Had the marks been made by human fingers? Multooler believed not. But he had no alternative to suggest. After many years at his gruesome task he could not think what object or what creature could have inflicted those monstrous marks.

As we drew back, puzzled and disconcerted, Dr. Multooler added:

"You will want to know, Mr. Colt, that these marks were put on her throat—after death."

Colt turned suddenly back to look incredulously into the eyes of the assistant medical examiner. I could see that Multooler's announcement seemed to Colt of the most extraordinary importance. Baffled for a moment, the Commissioner seemed suddenly to catch a gleam of light. Something was revolving in his mind; what Multooler had said gave him a clue and filled him with that intellectual excitement which is emotion raised to its most dangerous power.

SEEKS EXACT CAUSE

But at the time I could not see the clue, nor guess what it was that had so moved Thatcher Colt. He walked slowly back to the bed and, bending down close to the neck, he stared long and thoughtfully at those fantastic streaks and blotches.

At last he rose and addressed Dr. Multooler.

"You will send down both bodies to the morgue and have a full report for me by morning," the Commissioner requested. "It seems to be murder, gentlemen, with a superior technic. We shall have to work fast. I am relying on you, Multooler, to discover exactly how those girls died."

"I will do my best," promised the big physician earnestly.

A few minutes later two men in white coats carried away all that remained of Lola Carewe and Christine Quires, wrapped naked in sheets. Colt turned again to Flynn.

"Will you get hold of Adams and Thompson, and have them bring their machines up here?" he asked suddenly.

Flynn closed one eye in great excitement.

"Try what?" barked Dougherty.

But Flynn was already on the telephone, and Colt was at the threshold of Lola's rococo bedroom, where Dr. Baldwin and Detective Dorothy Lox had been attending the stricken mother.

"If Mrs. Carewe is conscious, I shall have to speak to her now," announced Colt grimly.

MRS. CAREWE QUESTIONED

"Yes—that is all right," he assented, and without another word the doctor left the apartment, shadowed as before. Note paper in hand, I sat beside the bed in Lola's room as Colt began again to question the pale and haggard Mrs. Carewe who lay there staring with miserable eyes blindly up at the ceiling.

"Now, Mrs. Carewe," Colt began quietly, laying his hand kindly on the old lady's head, "tell me in a few words what happened just now in your room?"

"It was awful!" she rumbled, her voice deep in her throat. "I had felt hysterical—after you asked me all those questions last time. I lay down in my room. I was restless. I couldn't sleep in my own bed. I got up and went into Lola's room. I went in and turned on the lights. Then I saw—I screamed——"

"I shall be the next to go," she groaned. "And I won't care—if I can only be with Lola. Who else is there now?"

"We are all going to look out for you," promised the commissioner soothingly. "If you will help us."

"What can I do?"

GUARD PROMISED

"Tell me everything—even your suspicions."

"I will. Before God I will!"

"She must have come home before you reached here."

"We feel sure of that, too. But where could she have hidden?"

A blank look was on the old woman's face, as she realized the strange riddle which confronted us. It was as if Christine and her murderer had the power of penetrating matter, of passing silently and invisibly through walls sheathed in steel.

"I don't understand any of this," complained the old woman in a low voice. "Do you think—could it be—I mean—oh, but I mustn't let myself get superstitious."

"It doesn't matter," she insisted. "It only shows what a coward I am—but I do wonder if anybody is after me—please don't let them, Mr. Colt!"

"You will be most carefully guarded," Colt promised.

"And what do you want me to do to help you?"

"Two things. Answer all my questions now—all that you can—"

"Yes, sir!"

"And obey all my instructions."

"I will obey—truly, Mr. Colt."

"You are not to eat or drink anything prepared in this house. Miss Lox will bring you in anything that you desire."

RELATED CRIMES

"I will be careful to do as you say! But Mr. Colt—do you actually believe somebody is hidden, waiting to drop poison in our food?"

"I have formed no theories yet. Miss Lox will remain awake at your bedside throughout the rest of the night."

"I am glad. She is very good to me——"

"At noon tomorrow she will be relieved by another woman detective. Would you like a nurse, too?"

"No—I'm all right, thanks."

Synopsis

Following the receipt of a death threat, Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady," is mysteriously slain in her penthouse apartment at 3 a. m. New Year's. Dr. Hugh Baldwin reports death due to heart failure. The only clue to the murderer is a medical laboratory specimen box found outside Lola's window. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt attaches importance to the young man whose photograph is found in Lola's room, and whose identity Lola had refused to reveal beyond his first name, "Basil." At the mention of "Basil," Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, becomes hysterical. It is known that Lola quarreled with Gus Everett and Vincent Rowland, a lawyer, over investments. Eunice, the maid, confesses she was employed by Everett to report the goings on in the apartment. The mystery deepens with the finding of the body of Christine Quires, Lola's guest. Christine had been killed before Lola and her body hidden until an opportune moment arrived for the murderer to place it, soaking wet, in Lola's room. The findings are similar to those in Lola's case except that Christine's neck was bruised after death. Everett, Christine's last escort, claims he left her at the apartment elevator at midnight New Year's Eve, and then went for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, arriving home after 3 a. m.

Now Go On

"You are to have no visitors—you must deny yourself to everyone——"

"I will! I will!"

"I am certain, Mrs. Carewe," resumed the commissioner soothingly, as he wiped his right hand with a handkerchief, "that you can and will help us by answering my questions—I won't take long. It is almost certain that the deaths of these two women and the threats made against Lola's life are related crimes. Not only because of justice, but for your own safety, you can steel yourself and help me by answering my questions—the more we know, the better able we are to protect you."

After a moment Mrs. Carewe whispered that she was ready.

"Christine Margaret Quires."

"Her age?"

"Twenty-two."

"Where is her home?"

"In Rochester."

"With whom did she live there?"

"The address?"

"Why was Christine Quires living with you?"

"She was just here on a visit."

"How long had she been visiting you?"

"For the last three months."

"Did you ever have any other guest stay with you so long?"

"No. I fancy not."

"Was Christine intending to stay in New York permanently?"

"What was her line of work?"

"Interior decoration and design."

Madge Finally Finishes Her Play

"However, I haven't been napping," Lillian went on, after she had dubbed me "a visiting fireman" because of the swiftness with which I had dressed and come down for breakfast. "Sit ye down and tackle your grapefruit juice. I'll pop the eggs in now. Everything else is ready, and you ought to sip iced fruit juice slowly, anyway."

She lowered four eggs carefully into hot water as she spoke, then drew up a chair opposite mine and raised a glass of iced orange juice to her lips.

"I thought I'd have breakfast with you," she explained, "unless, of course, I'm bad for the literary mind."

"You probably are," I told her, smiling, "but I think I'll risk it for once."

"Thanks so much," she said affectedly; then more seriously: "But tell me, is Dicky raising any ructions about Hugh? I saw him headed for your room last night, but I didn't speak to him."

"No, he was very sweet, just came up to——" I hesitated.

"Apologize for the bone he had already pulled," she finished, wrinkling her nose at me. "I'll save you the trouble of saying it. Well! I'm glad he saw the light. He'll stay put now for awhile. What's on the bean this morning?"

"I'm going to finish that thing or——"

"Die in the attempt, I suppose," she finished. "You're permitted that, but you're not permitted to refer to the greatest American drama as 'that thing.' However, we'll allow for the artistic temperament this time. How long do you estimate it will take?"

NEEDS SLEEP

"About two hours," I said, "and then I'm coming in here and take your place as errand girl. You've been wearing yourself out only you won't admit it."

"Nonsense," she scoffed. "I'm not worn out. I waken at the same ungodly hour every morning."

"A mere habit," I said. "That proves nothing. What you need is sleep, and plenty of it, and I'm going to see that you get it."

She looked at me speculatively.

"It's a pity to waste such volcanic determination," she gibed. "Look here, I'll make a bargain with you. If when you finish the two hours' revision that you scheduled, you'll promise to go to your room and sleep until you wake up, I'll let you take up the white woman's burden then, and I'll take a good long nap."

"I've no business making terms with you," I told her. "When I finish that revision I ought to call Harry and Dicky and have them carry you 'kicking and screaming' or obediently quiescent to your room and lock you in. But you probably would be just contrary enough to spend your enforced imprisonment in kicking at the door instead of sleeping. I know you, you see. Therefore——"

"Therefore, you'd better let me have my own way," she said with a grin.

"I intend to," I retorted, smiling at her. "Give me another cup of coffee and I'll go out in the studio."

FINISHES REVISION

I found, when I finally reached my workroom, that my estimate of the time needed to complete this revision was very nearly correct. It was but 15 minutes past the two hours that I had named, when I made the last pencil revision upon the fourth act. I had read the lines of the acts over so many times that I purposely delayed a rereading of the play. I was conscious of a great drowsiness and knew that if I reread the whole thing now, as I had planned to do, the words simply would not register upon my mental consciousness. Hastily I bundled the manuscript together and went up to my room, tapping at Dicky's door as I went by.

"Will you read this for me?" I asked, as he opened the door. "It's all ready for the typist, but I'm not sure that I've caught all the mistakes."

"All right. I'll be your proofreader," Dicky said. "If you'll promise to go straight to bed. Do you want me to send it to the typist when I get through with it?"

"If you will, please," I said, and at something he must have seen in my face, he hastily put the manuscript down and picked me up bodily.

"You're all in," he said, and carrying me into my room, he put me down on my bed, removed my shoes, and laid a light coverlet over me. "Go to sleep this minute," he commanded. "I'll do sentry-go until you get up."

Be Sure to Vote Today

The Polls Will Be Open Until 8 O'clock P. M., Daylight Saving Time.

The people of Pennsylvania have an opportunity today to improve unsatisfactory social, political and economic conditions. The primary election furnishes a chance to put in control of affairs men who are pledged to policies that promise improvement.

An opportunity offers to send to the Legislature men who will place a curb on rapacious public utilities and force them to keep their rates within reasonable limits.

An opportunity offers to send to the Legislature men who will abolish the iniquitous Blue Law with its unjustified ban on innocent Sunday amusements.

An opportunity offers to deal prohibition and its attendant racketeering a blow by sending to the Legislature men who will repeal the state prohibition law.

An opportunity offers to rebuke the unscrupulous Republican machines of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. This can be done by voting for Judge Joseph Stadtfeld for the Superior Court, one of the ablest men on the bench. The Vare gang in Philadelphia has undertaken to unseat him.

No matter whom or what you favor, be sure to vote today if you are eligible. It is the duty of good citizenship. The polls will be open until 8 o'clock this evening, daylight saving time.

A Conference Is Urgent

Arrangements Should Be Made Immediately For Another Special Session of the Legislature

The $10,000,000 appropriated by the Legislature under the provisions of the Talbot Act for unemployment relief will be exhausted early in June.

Twenty-eight thousand families in Allegheny County are in need of assistance. Sixty thousand are in desperate straits in Philadelphia. In other parts of the State many thousands of families require help.

The communities in which these unfortunate families live are unable to furnish all the help required. Even if they were to increase municipal appropriations, at the cost of a higher tax on real estate, already overburdened, it is doubtful if they would be able fully to meet the needs of the situation.

It is generally recognized that the State, with more varied resources for raising money, must again come to the rescue. Gov. Pinchot has said he would call another special session of the Legislature.

With the primary campaign now out of the way the fear that politics would interfere with the preparation of a relief program loses much of its force.

Leaders of all factions should meet with business and welfare leaders in Harrisburg at once to devise ways and means for submission to the Legislature.

A Good Program

The Greater Pennsylvania Council Shows Recognition Of the State's Needs.

The Greater Pennsylvania Council, created by the Legislature at its last regular session "for the promotion of the economic, industrial, agricultural, social, educational, civic and recreational welfare of the commonwealth," has just issued its first report to the people in the form of a prospectus setting forth the specific plans to which it proposes to address itself. It is a good program.

Pittsburghers will note with satisfaction that the Council is concerned over the injustice of freight rates on coal "that specifically penalize Pennsylvania mines, as against those of areas farther from coal markets." The promise to strive to remedy the injustice shows appreciation of one of the greatest needs of this section of the state.

The Council has plans to help other industries, and business in general. It proposes to help the farmers in their marketing problems. It proposes to locate Pennsylvania's iron ore reserves in anticipation of the exhaustion of the Lake Superior ore supply. It proposes to investigate the possibility of building attractive homes for people with annual incomes of not more than $1,800. It proposes to look into the possibility of establishing large public parks near Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. These sample projects indicate the variety in the program.

The Council is composed of 150 Pennsylvanians, among whom are to be found many able men and women. There is encouragement to believe they will do something really worth while.

Inexcusable Negligence

Prisoner's Escape from Central Station Shows Astonishing Carelessness.

Not often, fortunately, do we hear of such astonishing carelessness on the part of the police as marked the escape of Donald Doane, a prisoner, from the Central Police Station yesterday.

Doane escaped from the Massachusetts State Prison last July—a fact which in itself should have been sufficient to put the police on guard.

It is doubtful if he was properly searched before being locked up. At any rate, he was in possession of an instrument with which he sawed through two sets of bars.

One of the police station attendants reports he heard noises which sounded as if bars were being sawed and notified a higher official. The latter says he made a tour of inspection and found a handkerchief wrapped around two bars of Doane's cell, but thought nothing of it.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Lock in Wedlock

Marriage is like home-cooking. Those who are fed up on it are always finding fault with it—and those who have never tried it are always sighing and wishing for it.

* * *

The cause for the trouble in marriage is that, before the wedding, we look for Perfection—afterward for Imperfections. Most people rush into marriage blindly and then recover their sight, instead of going into it with their eyes wide open—and then closing them forever.

One reason for all this talk about loosening the marriage ties and taking the lock out of wedlock is that in the matrimonial game we are no longer good sports. We are willing to face the music from Lohengrin, but not to face the consequences. We are not willing to work at marriage, any more. It's a poor sport who orders the goods and then dodges the bill collector.

* * *

Kipling may have been right when he said "He travels fastest who travels alone," but what's the HURRY? Bachelors are like barges without tugs: they may carry a lot of weight, but they never GET anywhere!

* * *

The old-fashioned man looked upon marriage as a necessity and an obligation. The modern man regards it as an accident, an incident, a menace or an adventure. It is not until he has tried everything else that he discovers that having somebody who "belongs" is the one thing that makes life worth living, work worth doing, and a man worth ANYTHING!

The idea of "companionate marriage," lockless wedlock, and all these other "modern improvements" is to change the rules of the game, so as to give the poor sports a chance to renege, the first time one of them discovers that he (or she) is bored or sees somebody else more attractive.

* * *

But marriage is a partnership! And there can't be any partnership or companionship where there are two individuals pulling in opposite directions and working for their own selfish and separate aims.

* * *

A man and even a woman can get almost everything outside of marriage these days—everything except companionship, a life partner and a permanent audience. But life without these is like playing to an empty house!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 26.—Out of the daily grist, comes a letter from a well known artist whose "head is bloody but unbowed." An older generation of vaudeville patrons remember him as the originator of a high grade novelty sketch that amused every country on the globe.

He says "I'm unknown to you." That is a mistake. During my high perched days in Nigger Heaven, I was a devoted admirer, the sort who followed him one rainy day through that bright gush of light of the Emery Arcade in Cincinnati as he sauntered window shopping. Here is his letter:

"I'm unknown to you, hence it has taken me some time to write this letter. I feared you might put me down as a publicity seeker, but in a corner of my garage, covered with cobwebs and dust, are piles of press books filled with clippings about myself from all corners of the world.

"One more mention of my name would make no difference, so let me out please, on any publicity seeking. I am writing about my dog to a dog lover—one of the few who understand such affections. I always loathed people who talked doggy-woggy prattle to pets. It was nauseating.

"So it was a few years ago when mother (that's my adorable missus) brought home a dog. I sulked for many weeks about it, fighting vainly to have her give it up. Then a calamitous day four years ago on the Orpheum circuit I lost my hearing and speech. In a flash my world collapsed.

"Yet out of this mute and deaf chaos I found the love of a faithful dog. Patsy—a beautiful little Boston—is my hearing and my voice. She knows of my difficulty and when I'm alone 'points' to the front door and back as well as the telephone.

"Two years ago she recovered from distemper totally blind but she still meets life bravely and without a whimper. Down in the valley together she seems eternally straining to lead me from my Gethsemane back again to the glorious hill tops.

"The last two years have taught me dogs have souls—and very beautiful ones. I am never alone but always she is at my side, her nubbin tail wagging and her head in an anticipatory cock at any noise she feels might be fraught with danger.

* * *

"I find myself floundering around trying to say something to you that I feel very deeply and here it is. I want to thank you for all the true things you have said about dogs. I feel very close to you.

* * *

"You have covered, or rather I should say, I have covered all the ground that you have been over in England, on the continent, and where not. I know the soft hush of an Amsterdam twilight, the mouse-powered taxis honking merrily through the Place de la Concorde, the breathless brown of the Rhine hills, the beautifully cobbed and one-lined dray-horses of Antwerp, the shaved pates of Potsdam, chimes at Cologne, dinner at Horcher's in Berlin, the fierce lusts of Havre, thick fogs along the Strand, floating gardens outside Mexico City—and all the rest.

* * *

"So you see you have revived pleasant memories for me through your column. I have learned of the activities—and at times the transition—of many of the good companions of my trouping days. In a word, you have kept me in touch with the whirligig I love so well.

* * *

"I have a hideaway on the eerie fringe of the Mojave where I go for long periods in hope of curing my trouble. A blessing of this earthly phenomenon is that one may always hope.

* * *

"My nearest neighbor is an old desert rat, toothless as a frog and wise as Jepthah but who never heard of Chaplin. He tosses off to me, as he trudges from the nearest township, the Los Angeles Examiner. In it I often find, through you, the tug for New York and to be a useful member of society again.

* * *

"I don't know how to thank you. Sometimes I think I will send you a grand piano or a motor car but likely you have both. Perhaps the greatest blessing I can bestow is to adopt you as a father, May I? I'm older, but it doesn't matter. Anyway, many blessings on you, Dad. Your very affectionate son."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

A New York newspaper has compiled a list of every person victimized by breach-of-promise blackmail during the last five years. It is a long list—almost as long as the list of racketeers, gangsters and other "public enemies." And quite as abominable. It is a shameful list to exist in a civilized country.

Yet it grows weekly. It grows with the aid and consent of the courts and the applause of a large part of the public; and its success is based on one of our most revered institutions—chivalry.

The procedure in the great majority of breach-of-promise cases is identical. The prosecuting lawyer pleads that his client was but an innocent maid, tricked, despoiled and abandoned by the perfidious monster who has wrecked her life. For wrecked it is! No hope, no pride, no joy can possibly exist for her in the future. With broken heart and shattered faith she must drag herself through the bitter years ahead.

Is it then too much to ask that she be given a little monetary compensation for all her sufferings? Just a mere trifle; say about $15,000? What's a petty sum like that in exchange for a lovely, trusting girl's innocence and modesty and faith?

AND WHAT COURT WOULD REFUSE TO GRANT THIS BALM TO PROTECT AMERICAN WOMANHOOD?

FOR COURTS WHICH GRANT "HEART BALM" DO NOT PROTECT AMERICAN WOMANHOOD.

INSTEAD, SUCH A COURT PANDERS TO A VICIOUS, VULGAR RACKET, AND EVERY AMERICAN WOMAN WHO IS WORTHY OF THE NAME RESENTS HAVING THAT NAME USED TO PROMOTE SUCH A RACKET.

No young lady has her innocence injured unless she wants to. Ladies who wish to retain their innocence can always do dishwashing instead.

Practically every breach of promise suit begins with some sweet thing visiting the fascinating devil's apartment and drinking cocktails with him as the evening shadows fall. Did she go there to pick daisies? Now I ask you!

Then, after that, of course there's nothing to do but quit her job and let him support her, which is probably an awful jolt to any sweet girl who just adores her daily toil!

It is absurd for any court to award such a woman compensation for her predicament. She is not an innocent victim. She is a common law-breaker. She is suffering the consequences of breaking law. It would be as sensible to give a thief compensation because a bulldog bites him or a householder shoots him as to give the erring lady heart balm.

It is more than absurd; it is outrageous for a judge to claim that he protects womanhood by such a procedure. He does not protect womanhood. He breaks down the decent standards of womanhood. He makes light of the marriage laws and makes this particular blackmail racket profitable.

Every breach-of-promise award in cases of that kind encourages and promotes lawlessness and immorality.

Text For Today But if the watchman see the sword come, and blow not the trumpet, and the people be not warned; if the sword come, and take any person from among them, he is taken away in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at the watchman's hand.—Ezekiel, xxxiii:6.

The Way Out

No. 3.—Provide Credit Expansion.

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

THE prolonged business depression and far-reaching unemployment constitute a broad challenge to political and business leadership. Instead of decrying the lack of leadership, the Hearst newspapers desire to make such contribution as they can to constructive, forward-looking economic leadership. The depression should be attacked simultaneously on all fronts. The emergency calls for the spirit of a field marshal who can co-ordinate and synchronize various remedial campaigns.

The blizzard of deflation continues to upset human relationships and to destroy business profits.

The incidence of the social cost is cruelly unjust, since it falls all too heavily on the shoulders of those least able to bear it, namely, the unemployed.

Most economists recognize that the corrective phase of the deflationary movement has long since been past.

Any further contraction will be destructive in character, and will be ruinous to the American standard of living, which unfortunately has already been impaired.

In the final three months of 1931, the torrents of deflation resulted in a decline of member bank credit at the rate of 25 per cent a year.

The reconstruction program, including the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Glass-Steagall act, was rushed through Congress ostensibly to meet this situation.

Thus far, the hope of actual counter deflation—in the form of expansion of bank credit—has failed to materialize.

There has, in fact, been a continuing decline in the loans and investments of reporting member banks.

In the first quarter of 1932 they declined to the tune of $1,178,000,000, compared with $1,500,000,000 in the final quarter of 1931. The decline since adoption of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act amounted to $994,000,000 and since the Glass-Steagall bill was passed there was another setback of $548,000,000.

Though the declining rate of shrinkage is a partial gain, there has been a disappointing lack of credit expansion among the banks, which deal with the businessman and the public.

As long as each individual bank wants to protect itself against the mistakes of 20,000 other banks, reconstruction is deferred.

The way to stop contraction is to stop contracting.

Perhaps an actual expansion in the loans and investments of member banks could be accomplished by a round robin voluntary agreement by member banks that in the course of the next six months they would increase their loans and investments by—say—5 per cent. If all agreed to check the stampede, it would be safe for the individual banker to act rationally and in accordance with the legitimate needs of his customers.

A precedent for this type of agreement could be found in the "standstill" agreement, whereby American commercial banks agreed not to diminish the total volume of their credit advances to German banks.

Has not the time come for our bankers to consider doing as much for Americans as for Germans?

Metamorphosis of a Dry

By B. C. Forbes

I VOTED for prohibition.

I was naive enough, childish enough to believe that we would have prohibition.

And I was convinced that real prohibition, nation-wide prohibition, would be beneficial to our morals, beneficial to industry, beneficial to business, beneficial to society and especially to those who had suffered most, directly and indirectly, through intemperance.

When the nation began to enjoy prosperity two years after the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment, I imagined my reasoning was being proved sound. As prosperity waxed, I became almost cocksure—notwithstanding that by that time evils begotten by prohibition were increasing.

I AM no longer an upholder of prohibition.

Prohibition has bred contempt for law.

Prohibition has cost taxpayers billions in unlevied taxes.

Prohibition has had a deplorable effect on the younger generation.

Prohibition has made myriads of honest citizens hypocrites.

In short, prohibition has been an unmitigated fiasco morally, financially, economically, socially, a curse instead of a blessing, a "noble experiment" that has gone deplorably, shockingly, infinitely awry.

MY metamorphosis is of no interest or importance in itself.

But is there not overwhelming evidence that millions of Americans have undergone a similar change of mind and heart because of stark, inescapable, irrefutable, ghastly facts?

Why should the sovereign citizens of this commonwealth, this democracy, be denied the right to make or amend their own laws?
